"It is with Antiquity as with Ancestry; Nations are proud of the one and Individuals of the other; but if they are nothing in themselves, that which is their pride ought to be their humiliation."—Colton.

Preface

About forty years ago the late Dr. David Parsons Holton, one of the founders of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, was actively engaged in genealogical research pertaining to the Parsons and other American families, and at his request I wrote to my father, James⁷ Parsons, and to an uncle, Henry⁷ Parsons, for whatever information they could each give as to their ancestry. Their statements, derived chiefly from their recollection of what their father, Elijah⁶ Parsons, had told them, will be found herein. They were then both over sixty years of age, and their father, who in his twentieth year, had emigrated from Wilbraham, Mass., to Central New York, had been dead five years. His ancestral home was, relatively, further from Central New York in the early part of the last century than the most remote parts of the earth today, and communications in person, or by letter, were infrequent and difficult.

These statements, although quite incomplete and fragmentary, and possibly not accurate in some details, yet furnish the necessary links in the ancestral line in Cornet Joseph¹ Parsons, and I now count myself fortunate in having obtained and preserved them. In my correspondence I have frequently found it difficult to get any information prior to the grandfather, when he, in early life, had removed far from the place of birth and the home of his ancestors. My grandfather, in his youth, had frequent intercourse with his grandfather, Aaron⁴ Parsons, and also with his uncles and their families before leaving his ancestral home in Massachusetts.

About three years ago my attention was again directed to this subject, and the duty, as well as pleasure, was urged upon me to take up and complete what I had started so long ago, and which the cares of an active business life had for a time pushed aside.

In this way the present work was begun, with no thought of family pride, as, in fact, I knew so little of the family history, and of my ancestors and their descendants, that I had none of the inspiration that usually attends the knowledge of ancestral history and tradition.

My plan at first was to limit myself to the ancestral line, and descendants of my grandfather, but my interest grew as I pursued my investigations in the New York libraries and by correspondence, so that the scope was enlarged to take in as far as possible the descendants of my great-grandfather, Elijah⁵ Parsons, and still later, the descendants of his brothers, descendants of Aaron⁴ Parsons.

These investigations and correspondence, and particularly an examination of local New England histories, church periodicals, genealogies of families, allied by marriage, biographical dictionaries, etc., supplemented by personal research and extensive correspondence, brought to my attention a volume of interesting data pertaining to collateral lines, descendants of Cornet Joseph Parsons which, although of a fragmentary character, I then intended to include in a separate part of the book, so bringing together much historical and genealogical matter that was scattered through many volumes and gathered by much correspondence.

But the volume of genealogical data grew to such an extent that I deemed it best to abandon my original plan and attempt at least a partial record of the descendants of Cornet Joseph Parsons of all lines. When, as I believed, my work on this plan was about completed, I was so fortunate as to get access to the unpublished manuscripts of the late Dr. Holton and wife, containing genealogical data, pertaining to several Parsons families, including that of Cornet Joseph Parsons, which, with much labor and expense, and during a period of about twenty years, they had gathered. Additional data was obtained from these manuscripts, and they aided me in comparing and correcting what I had previously gathered.

I have not attempted to follow the lines of the female descendants, except when specially requested to do so, and the data was furnished; as in many cases, it would only repeat what may be found in the published genealogies of the families into which they had married. And I am also aware that I may have omitted, or not been able to follow, many lines of descent through male ancestors.

A work of this kind, covering a period of about two hundred and seventy-five years, is at its best, in large part fragmentary and unsatisfactory. The critic may fairly say—that much does not appear that properly belongs to it, and perhaps much has been said that could have been omitted.

I have taken the liberty of adding a brief mention of the ancestry and descendants of the Best, Moyer and Cook families, colonists of the New York State, and which were allied by marriage to my immediate ancestors.

In the preparation of this work I have consulted and frequently copied from the following works: The New England Historical and Genealogical Register, now in more than sixty volumes; The History of Northampton, by Trumbull (1898); The Antiquities of Northampton, by Clark; History of Hampden County, by Copeland; History of Springfield, by Green; History of Wilbraham, by Stebbins; History of Leicester, by Washburn, and many other records, some of which are referred to in the text; but I am chiefly indebted to the "Parsons Family," by Albert Ross Parsons and Henry M. Burt (1898), and the "Parsons Family," by Gen. Lewis B. Parsons (1900), for much of the Parsons ancestry prior to about 1744.

I also desire to express my indebtedness to Miss Mary E.⁷ Miller, of South Hadley, Mass., for the record of the descendants of Elijah⁵ Parsons, by his second wife, Eunice Jennings, to Charles A.⁸ Parsons, of Danville, Ill., and Rev. N. Emerson⁸ Parsons, of Homer, Ill., for the record of the descendants of Elisha⁶ Parsons, to Hon. Erastus H.⁸ Staley, of Frankfort, Ind., for the record of the descendants of Erastus⁶ Parsons, to Charles F.⁸ Parsons, of Oswego, N. Y., for the descendants of Col. Eli⁵ Parsons, to John J.⁸ Parsons, of Jarvis, Ontario, for the descendants of Isaac Jones⁶ Parsons, to John C.⁸ Parsons, of Chicago, Ill., for the descendants of Rev. Silas⁵ Parsons, to N. B. Parsons, of Chicago, Ill., for the descendants of Elder Stephen Parsons, and to Carlos Parsons⁹ Darling, Lawrenceville, Tioga county, Pennsylvania, the record of the descendants of Capt. John² Parsons.

To very many others am I also indebted for prompt and interested replies to letters of inquiry, evincing so great interest in my work that I found it difficult to decide when or where to end the research.

For genealogical research has a special and unique fascination. We seem to make the personal acquaintance of kindred long dead to this world, and we are made to feel the continuity of life in a way that strengthens faith in immortality. We dwell with pleasure upon ancestral courage, patriotism, and fidelity to all that was true and pure, while we cast a mantle of forgetfulness over all shortcomings. The qualities that were best in our ancestors we recognize as best today and forever.

The more recent revival of interest in genealogy is in every way creditable to the American people, and is a patriotic service. Family history is interwoven with our country's history, particularly when its roots strike deep into Colonial times.

The knowledge of our ancestors widens our horizon and gives a broader view of life and its responsibilities. We remember that posterity may sit in judgment on us, and our times, and this thought should be an inspiration and incentive to higher and better things.

In the preparation of this record I confess to have experienced a growth of honest pride in my ancestry. For while few were conspicuous in our history, many of the name have done honorable service, and they belong to the class noted for industry, intelligence, and piety, upon which our country must always depend for its real greatness, and from which in time of need or stress the country's statesmen, educators, philanthropists, and soldiers are usually recruited.

THE PARSONS FAMILY IN ENGLAND, AND ARMS OF ITS BRANCHES

THE PARSONS FAMILY IN ENGLAND, AND ARMS OF ITS BRANCHES

The name of Parsons has for several centuries been known in nearly all the southern counties of England and parts of Ireland. The origin of the name is not known, with any certainty, and can only be a matter of surmise.

Some are of the opinion that the names of Parsons, Person, Pierson, and Pearson, had a common origin. We only know that persons by the name of Parsons have found a distinct place in English history from the 13th Century.

It is only the few of any name, family, or race, who become noted, the many keeping the average level of human existence characteristic of their times and environment, which suggests that the family name had an existence long before it had any historical record.

The English "Dictionary of National Biography" has much interesting information on the subject, and the "New England Historical and Genealogical Record," Vol. 1, published in 1847, contains interesting data as to the Parsons family, both in England and America, and concerning which the writer says:

"It does not appear that there ever has been any attempt to collect even the materials for the history of the English family of Parsons, so far as has come to our knowledge, notwithstanding there has been many individuals among them of great distinction as Knights, Baronets, and Noblemen. Those of the name are, and have been for a long period, found in several counties as Devonshire, Buckinghamshire, Nottinghamshire, Oxfordshire, etc."

From the foregoing and other sources I have selected the following representative persons of the name in early English history.

Walter Parsons, of Mulso, Ireland, about 1200.

John Parsons, of Cuddington, Herefordshire, about 1280.

John Parsons, of Oxfordshire, about 1300. From him are descended Sir Thomas Parsons, of Great Milton, Sir John Parsons, Lord Mayor of London, 1704, and Sir Humphrey Parsons, Lord Mayor of London, 1731 and 1740.

Sir John Parsons, Mayor of Hereford, 1481.

Robert Parsons (1546-1610), Jesuit Missionary, born at Nether-Stowey, Somerset, son of Henry Parsons. Educated at Balliol College, Oxford. He became a Roman Catholic and attained great power and influence in the church. He established an English college at Rome, and at Valladolid, and published several works. Disraeli (father of Lord Baconsfield), in his curiosities of literature, says of him:

"Parsons, the wily Jesuit, was so doubtful how the Lady Arabella Stuart, when young stood toward Catholicism, that he describes her religion to be tender, green and flexible, as is her age and sex, and to be wrought hereafter and settled according to future events and times."

Robert Parsons, who died in 1570, was a musical composer, born in Exeter, Devonshire. He left much music, found in Cathedral libraries.

John Parsons, a noted musician in 1621, was appointed organist and choir master at Westminster Abbey. He died in 1623, and was buried in the Abbey cloisters.

Bartholomew Parsons (1574-1643), a native of Somerset, and of the same family as Robert, the Jesuit, was educated at Oxford, and was chaplain to the Bishop of Salisbury.

His son, Bartholomew (Oxford 1637), was arrested July, 1648, for raising arms against Parliament.

Sir William Parsons (1570-1650), Lord Justice of Ireland, eldest son of James Parsons, was created Baronet 1620, M. P. 1639, Lord Justice 1640. From Sir Richard, a son of Sir William, are descended the Earls of Rosse.

William Parsons, the 3d Earl of Rosse (1800-1867), the noted astronomer.

Philip Parsons (1594-1653), principal of Hart Hall, now Hertford College, Oxford.

Andrew Parsons (1616-1684), a dissenting minister, son of John Parsons, of Milton, Somerset. Educated at Oxford. Was prosecuted in 1660 for alleged seditious preaching against the King in Shropshire. Was tried, convicted, fined 200 pounds, and imprisoned. In 1662 the fine was remitted and he was released.

James Parsons (1705-1770), physician and antiquarian, born at Barnstaple, Devonshire. Educated at Dublin. Studied medicine at Paris. Eminent as a physician, and author of medical works.

John Parsons (1761-1819), Bishop of Peterborough and Master of Balliol College, Oxford, son of Isaac Parsons.

"With the mastership of Dr. Parsons the real revival of Balliol, and it may be said of the university generally, began, etc."

In connection with this account of the English families of the name, and as an interesting historical feature, something should be said as to the heraldic symbols and coat-armour of the ancient Parsons families.

While heraldry and all matters pertaining to it have never had a place in American life or history, and the adoption and use of coats-of-arms and heraldic designs by Americans and American families, may be considered by many a meaningless affectation, it is nevertheless an appropriate part of any ancestral, or genealogical study of families having an English, or other European origin. Its meaning and history may be found discussed in any Encyclopedia, but for brevity I quote from a well known authority the following:

"In the days when Knights were so encased in armour that no means of identifying them were left, the practice was introduced of painting their insignia of honor on their shields as an easy method of distinguishing them. For a time Armorial Bearings were granted only to individuals but Richard I during his crusades to Palestine made them hereditary. The reason why Armorial Bearings are called coats-of-arms is, that they used to be introduced on the sur coat of their possessor, and the term was retained even when they were displayed elsewhere."

A very exhausting discussion of the coat armour of the English Parsons families is contained in the work of Albert Ross Parsons, whose reputation as antiquarian and historian gives to his statements the weight of the highest authority, and I have taken the liberty of quoting largely from what he says on the subject. In the course of his discussion he says:

"In order to get a bird's-eye view of the ramifications of the ancient family of Parsons in England, we may begin with Herefordshire.

"We note in this shire in the Heralds visitation of 14th Edward I as the most ancient representative of the family so far discovered the name of John Parsons, of Cuddington, A. D. 1284.

"Two centuries later, A. D. 1481, Sir John Parsons was Mayor of Hereford. In his armorial bearings is a leopard's head (symbolizing military service in the Orient), between three crosses (designating the crusades).

"The Parsons to whom this coat armour was originally granted may have gone to the Holy Land with Richard Coeur de Lion, and Frederick Barbarossa in 1189, the last crusade that reached Palestine in force.

"This crusade, however, was a failure, as Coeur de Lion was only able to get within sight of Jerusalem, twenty miles away, without daring to attack the city, from which he retired, defeated, to imprisonment. Hence in the light shed by the laws of heraldic symbolism upon the crusaders coat armour of Sir John Parsons as it is further interpreted by the later arms of Sir Thomas Parsons, of Oxfordshire, it is probable either (a) that the original grantee was a Knight who followed Robert of Normandy, son of William the Conqueror (1066), in the successful crusade of Godfrey of Bouillon, who 'with one hundred thousand steel clad Knights' set out for the Holy Land in 1096, and achieving the conquest of Jerusalem, set up in Palestine a Frank kingdom that stood until 1147, Godfrey being elected the first king of Jerusalem; or else (b) that he went with the expedition of Richard Earl, of Cornwall (brother of Henry III, the nephew of Richard the Lion-hearted), who landed at Acre 'accompanied by the flower of the English chivalry' in 1239, remained in Palestine until the banner of the Cross was once more planted on the ruined walls of Jerusalem.

"For the arms of Sir Thomas Parsons, of Oxford, which, like those of Sir John Parsons, of Hereford, can only refer to the crusades, place the leopard's head in the crest, surmounted by an eagle's thigh erased, symbolizing victory in the Orient, and displaying upon the coat armour two chevrons, a combination signifying that the original grantee was eminent both as ecclesiastic and as warrior, together with three eagles displayed, thus placing emphasis upon successive victories won.

"The arms of the Earls of Rosse, descended from Sir Richard Parsons, of Norfolk, subsequently established in Ireland, bear three leopard's heads, while the crosses of the ancient crusader of Hereford, reappear in the arms of the Parsons family of Radnorshire, Wales, whose connections with the Parsons of Essex and Devonshire will presently be shown, a further connection between this Parsons family of Wales and the Oxfordshire Parsons being indicated by the repeated appearance of the Welch name Hugh in the Oxfordshire family.

"Thus the heraldic indications of the Parsons arms and crest carry back the family patronymic, in connection with distinguished ecclesiastic and military service, to the time of William the Conqueror.

"Adjoining Hereford on the east is Worcestershire, where, prior to the time of Cromwell, Dorothy, daughter of Sir Charles Parsons, married Sir Charles Saunders, whose son, Sir Robert, married Arabella, daughter of Sir Marmaduke Humphreys, and became ancestor of the Saunders families of Devonshire and elsewhere.

"The next county, but one to the east of Worcestershire, is Northampton, where, about A. D. 1550, resided (1) Ralph Parsons, who had a son (2), John, who married the daughter of Esquire Cutler, and had a son (3), John of Boveny, who married Elizabeth, sole heiress of Sir John Kidderminster, and had two sons (4), I Charles, born 1625, died without issue, (5) II William, and three daughters.

"This William (5) married Elizabeth, daughter and heiress of Sir Lawrence Parsons, by whom he had two sons; one (6) a colonel who died without issue, and the other, John (7), his successor. William (5) was made a baronet by Charles II. He was somewhat conspicuous during the interregnum, as may be inferred from his having given a pass to a gentleman of the privy chamber to visit Ireland. This gentleman having been taken by the Parliament officers was put to the rack.

"Sixty miles further east, in the County of Norfolk, toward the close of the Sixteenth century, resided the Rt. Rev. Dr. Parsons, Lord Bishop of Norwich, who had three sons, I Thomas, II Sir William, III Sir Lawrence.

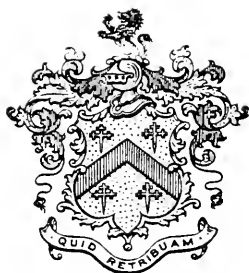

"Of these sons, Sir William II married the niece of Sir Godfrey Lacy. Sir William was commissioner of plantations to Ireland, under Queen Elizabeth, in 1602, Surveyor General of Ireland in 1611, Supervisor of Crown lands (in conjunction with his brother, Lawrence), in 1620, Knighted in November of the same year, M. P. in 1639, Lord Deputy in 1640. From Sir Richard, the son of this Sir William Parsons, are descended the Earls of Rosse.

"Retracing our way, twenty miles west of Hereford, is Radnorshire, where, in 1634, the high sheriff of the shire was Cecil Parsons, Esq., descended paternally from the Parsons of Springfield, Essex County (the place of residence of William Pynchon, Esq., founder of Springfield, Mass.), and maternally from the Jeffreys of Prior, County Brecon. This Jeffrey-Parsons descent reminds us that at Alphington, near Exeter, Devonshire, one hundred miles south of Radnor, was born, in 1631, Jeffrey Parsons, who came to America and settled at Gloucester, Mass. Meanwhile, it is but thirty miles from Alphington to the Torringtons, whence, according to Rev. Jonathan Parsons, came his grandfather, Deacon Benjamin Parsons, the brother of Cornet Joseph Parsons, of Springfield, Northampton, and Boston, Mass. Here is a clear connection through Radnorshire between the Parsons of Devonshire and those of Springfield, Essex, the seat of the Pynchon family."

Albert Ross Parsons concludes from his investigations of the subject, only a part of which is quoted above, that the descendants of Jeffrey Parsons, who settled in Gloucester, Mass., and the descendants of Cornet Joseph Parsons, and of Deacon Benjamin Parsons, both of whom originally settled in Springfield, Mass., and all three of whom, without much doubt, came from Devonshire, England, may properly assume the ancient arms of Sir John Parsons, of Hereford. And we may add with equal reason, the later arms of Sir Thomas Parsons, of Oxford, having the same distinguishing characteristic of the leopard's head.

Crozier's General Armory, which is regarded as an authority by Americans, gives to Joseph Parsons the arms of Sir Thomas of Oxford, probably for the reasons stated above.

The arms of the various English families of Parsons, shown herewith, can all be found in Burke's General Armory.

THE PARSONS FAMILY IN AMERICA

THE PARSONS FAMILY IN AMERICA

It will be remembered that the emigration from England to the American colonies that we are now considering occurred during the troublous and unsettled times that immediately preceded the Cromwellian wars between the King (Charles I) and the Parliament, and while England was, as has been well described, "little better than an armed Camp." It was the last great stand of the Royal Prerogative against Democracy. It was the Puritan against the King and it was the Puritan in three aspects that was the soul of the Democratic uprising. The Puritan in politics seeking civil rights; in religion as against the established, or any state church, and in morals seeking a higher and purer standard of life, and all these characteristics usually, but not always, united in the same person.

The Pilgrims who came over in the Mayflower and many others who followed had lived for several years in Holland, that cradle of religious and civil liberty, and we have reason to believe that the civil and religious institutions of New England owe as much, if not more, to Holland than to England.

It was during this period that several by the name of Parsons emigrated. The first of the name to appear in New England was Joseph Parsons, later known as Cornet Joseph, from his military office, whose first appearance of record in history was as witness to a deed given by the Indians to William Pynchon and others of lands at and about Springfield, Mass., and this record will be confined chiefly to his descendants.

Others by the name whose descendants have been honorably conspicuous in the history of our country and who settled in New England are these:

Benjamin Parsons, known in history as Deacon Benjamin, a brother of Joseph, and who also settled in Springfield, Mass., but many of whose descendants in the second and third generations were in Enfield, Conn. Thomas Parsons, who settled in Windsor, Conn.; Samuel Parsons, who first came to Connecticut but later settled at East Hampton, Long, Island, N. Y.; John Parsons, who, about 1680, was at York, Me.; Jeffrey Parsons, who went first to the Barbadoes but settled at Gloucester, Mass., the ancestor of Judge Theophilus Parsons and his son, Prof. Theophilus Parsons, of Cambridge, Mass.; Philip Parsons, who appeared at Enfield, Conn., about 1690; William Parsons, who settled in Boston.

The records show that others by the name settled in Maryland and Virginia, but those of the name now living in this country, of Colonial descent, can usually trace their descent from one of the above named New England colonists.

We do not think that it has been definitely determined, up to this time, where in England Cornet Joseph Parsons was born, who his parents were, or when and how he came to America, but circumstantial evidence points to either Devon or Essex County as the place of his birth, with the preference to Devonshire, and that he sailed from Gravesend, England, in the "Transport," Edward Walker, Master, July 4, 1635.

The letter of Rev. Jonathan Parsons of Newburyport, Mass., to his son, Gen. Samuel Holden Parsons, furnishes quite satisfactory evidence that his grandfather, Deacon Benjamin Parsons, was born at or near Torrington, in Devonshire, and came to this country soon after Joseph. It is also well settled by record evidence that Cornet Joseph Parsons and Deacon Benjamin Parsons were brothers, the following being some of the evidence:

In the action of Joseph Parsons against James Bridgeman (one of the witchcraft trials hereinafter mentioned), Benjamin Parsons of Springfield was a witness, and he refers to the wife of Joseph as "my sister" and as "Sister Parsons."

Also in the accounts between Pynchon and Joseph Parsons there were three charges against Parsons, under date of March 12, 1656.

"To Goodman Bissall I paid for you 10d more than I formerly accounted & the wheate your Bro. Benjamin delivered me I accounted it $\frac{1}{2}$ bushel to much."

In 1658 occurs this credit to Parsons: "By so much I received of your Brother Benjamin 12 shillings."

These accounts are in the Springfield, Mass., City Library and are published in the "Parsons Family," by Albert Ross Parsons (1898), who, at p. 76, of his book, gives other strong circumstantial evidence, not only that Joseph and Benjamin were brothers, but the probability that Thomas of Windsor, Conn., and Samuel of Long Island, were their brothers because of the similarity of the baptismal names of the children of these four families. But, as to this, it may be said that in all the New England colonial families there was a striking similarity of names.

William Pyncheon was one of the Grantors of the Massachusetts Bay Company and came from Springfield, Essex County, England, in 1630, in company with Bradford and others. About 1635 he, with others, obtained permission to settle in the Connecticut Valley and, in 1636, is the first record of Joseph Parsons at Springfield with Pyncheon as witness to the Indian deed.

Hon. Henry C. Murphy, late of Brooklyn, N. Y., while U. S. Minister at The Hague, soon after the Civil War, examined the records at Amsterdam and Leyden of the English Puritans, who had lived in Holland, and he found at Leyden the name, among others, of Joseph Parsons, of Colchester, one of the congregation of Rev. John Robinson. Colchester is in Essex County, England, near to Springfield, and it is at once suggested that he may have been the father, or a near relative of Joseph Parsons, of Springfield, Mass. (See Founders of New England, by Drake, p. 87.)

Mr. Albert Ross Parsons, in his book, p. 93, gives some very interesting facts as to the Pyncheon and Parsons families, and his conclusions therefore have great force. He says, in substance, as follows:

"William Horn, of London, one of the Judges of Guildhall, had two sons, Thomas and John. William, a son of Thomas, married Elizabeth Parsons, a daughter of Thomas Parsons, Gent., Stortford, Essex; and Bartholomew, a son of John, married Jane Pyncheon, a first cousin of William Pyncheon. It is probable that William Pyncheon was cognizant of this connection, and he was a Puritan. We now note that among the Pilgrims of the congregation of Rev. John Robinson, of Leyden, prior to the sailing of the Mayflower, was Joseph Parsons of Colchester, Essex."

And at p. 94, "At the same time we find recorded in Essex the marriage of Abigail, daughter of John Parsons. Cornet Joseph Parsons and Benjamin Parsons, of Springfield, and Thomas Parsons, of Windsor, Conn., all had daughters named Abigail, &c."

"The only supposition capable of harmonizing the known facts of the Pynchon-Parsons problem would seem to be that Joseph Parsons and Pynchon's younger son left England at about the same time to seek their fortunes; young Parsons, joining his Pynchon connections at Springfield, and young Pynchon accompanying or following his Parsons connections to the Barbadoes. Subsequently the prospects of Joseph Parsons became sufficiently promising to induce his father (see letter of Jonathan Parsons) to come from Devonshire to visit the settlement at Windsor, Hartford and Springfield, bringing with him Joseph's brothers, Benjamin, Thomas, of Windsor, and perhaps Samuel, subsequently of East Hampton, L. I. Their Devonshire connection, Jeffrey Parsons, went first to the Barbadoes and later settled in Gloucester, Mass."

In the New England Historical and Genealogical Record, Vol. 12, p. 175, is a copy of a letter dated Newburyport, Mass., Oct. 20, 1769, written by Rev. Jonathan Parsons to his son, Samuel Holden Parsons, of Lynn, Conn., which is so interesting, not only as to its genealogical statements, but also as to the religious controversies of the times, that I quote it in full as written:

"DEAR CHILD:

"I am glad to hear by yours of ye first and 10th inst. yt your health is restored & pray God to give ye a heart to serve him in newness of spirit. Sorry I am to find ye chhs. are thrown into confusion & ye more so as I understand much of ye controversy is whether ye children of those Parents who do not come to ye Lord's Table shall be baptised or not. My judgment is yt no minister or chh has a right to deny baptism to those children whose parents openly profess good principles, and lead a moral life, even tho they do not come to the Lord's Table & I am very sorry Dr. Bellamy & others have stired up strife abt. yt matter. I think they may be easily answered, and were I a minister in your colony I believe I should think it my duty to enter ye List.

"I am persuaded if the Seperatists from Mr. Edwards had an able leader Mr. Edwards must either be convinced or removed. Mr. Bird is not his Match & perhaps those yt seperate do not desire him if he was. I should be loth to stand in a special convention with a particular church that goes into yt new scheme. The like controversy gave great disturbance to ye protestant church 150 years ago but was happily calmed by some able Pers.

"You write yt one Samuel Parsons from Martinico desires to know from what part of England our ancestors came. I will tell you as near as my memory enables me (as I have no record of the matter but what I heard from my parents). I suppose my Great-Grandfather Parsons came from Great Torrington about 20 or 30 miles from Tiverton and not far from Exeter. He came over and brought my Grandfather, Benjamin Parsons, and other children about 130 years ago perhaps 140. I believe ye Parsons Record of my Great-Grandfather and Grandfather might be found either at Great Torrington or Tiverton & by yt means it might be known whether we & Samuel Parsons are descended from one stock. My Great-Grandfather Marshfield came from Exeter, and brought my Grandfather when he was about 4 years old. My Grandfather Marshfield's name, I think, was Samuel and my Great-Grandfather's name Josiah.

"They came over about the same time, with my Great-Grandfather Parsons, and his family. I should be glad if the History of the families could be traced back as far as those yt first came over, for it might be of service to some of their descendants.

"My love to my children and grandchildren & am your careful father,

J. PARSONS.

"Newburyport, Oct. 20, 1769."

In the American Biographical Dictionary, by Allen (1852), is this record of the writer of the above letter:

"Parsons, Jonathan, b. West Springfield, Nov. 30, 1705. Yale 1729. Ordained 1730. Minister Lyme."

He was the son of Ebenezer Parsons, of Springfield, and Margaret, daughter of Samuel Marshfield, and Ebenezer was a son of Benjamin Parsons and Sarah Vore, his wife, of Springfield, Mass. (Vol. I, N. E. Hist. & Gene. Reg.)

His son, Gen. Samuel Holden Parsons, to whom the above letter was written, later served with great distinction during the Revolutionary war, and after the war was appointed Governor of the Northwestern Territory by Washington. His name frequently appears in the early histories of Indiana and Illinois.

An interesting sidelight on this subject is in "Notes and Queries," an English publication, 3d series, Vol. II, p. 440, Jan. to June, 1867. The writer says:

"Parsons Family. My attention has been accidentally drawn to some memoranda of a family of Parsons in an early number of the 'New England Historical and Genealogical Register.' As the article in question is a sad medley of various totally different families, some notice of the name may be of service to your Trans-Atlantic Colleague. A Buckinghamshire family (Baronets) now extinct bore azure, on a chevron argent between 3 oak leaves and as many crosses, gules.

"Distinct families of the name with different coats-of-arms were established in Herefordshire, Gloucestershire, in Sussex, and at Milton, County Oxford. From the latter a family in Barbadoes is said to descend. But the family referred to among the early settlers in New England (whose arms are correctly given in the New England Register) descends from the family of Parsons of Black Torrington, near Highampton, Devonshire, who appear to have been allied by marriage to the Giffords, Mouks, Mathews, and other leading names of that country. Of this family was Sir John Parsons, Lord Mayor of London, 1704. Sir Humphrey Parsons, who held the same office, in 1730, who both bore the same arms. A tombstone (engraved with the same arms and crest) to the memory of John Parsons, Esq., of Bere, with the date 1675, was recently removed from the church yard of Black Torrington to the adjacent school house by the Vicar. The Irish family may possibly derive from the foregoing, but according to the Peerage, they have borne within the last 40 years two entirely different coats-of-arms, neither of them that of Parsons of Black Torrington."

In the proceedings of the Worcester Society of Antiquity, Vol. 20, No. 1, published 1904, is a monograph by George Maynard, Esq., of Worcester, Mass., upon the Parsons family, with special reference to the families of Worcester and Leicester, Mass., who were descended from Cornet Joseph Parsons. At page 45 Mr. Maynard says:

"The Parsons family is of English descent and found at an early period in New England. In all the centuries of their history they have borne an honorable part in the affairs of both England and America, and many of that name have been prominent as clergymen, physicians, jurists, scholars, and soldiers. . . . On the fourth July, 1635, Joseph Parsons sailed with his brother, Benjamin, and others of the family from Gravesend, England, in the Barque "Transport," Edward Walker, master, bound for America. He was born at Great Torrington, near Exeter, Devonshire, England, and is supposed to be descended from Sir Thomas Parsons, of Milton Royal, who was Knighted by King Charles I. in 1634."

In a subsequent correspondence with Mr. Maynard as to his authority for the statements with reference to the birthplace of Joseph Parsons, and when and how he came from England to America, I learned that his authority was chiefly family tradition, based upon statements made by the descendants of the Rev. Solomon Parsons, and records preserved by his family and by the families of the late Samuel H. Parsons, of Hartford, Conn.

While there is still an absence of authoritative facts I place great reliance upon the statement made in the letter above quoted, written by the Rev. Jonathan Parsons, in 1769; and I believe we may also rely upon the statement made by Mr. Maynard as to the birthplace and sailing of Joseph Parsons from England, in July, 1635.

I have grave doubts, however, as to his being a son or descendant of Sir Thomas Parsons, of Milton Royal, knighted by King Charles I. in 1634, for these reasons: Both Joseph and Benjamin Parsons were Puritans and dissenters in politics and religion, and we have every reason to believe that they were descended from stock holding similar opinions and beliefs in England; and it is not reasonable to suppose that King Charles I would have bestowed knighthood at that period upon any one holding those views.

We must not forget, however, the state of strife and civil war existing in England at the time. Families were often divided in sentiment, as in the border states during our Civil war. In the same family may have been Kings, men, and Parliament men, and those who emigrated severed old associations and family ties. Hence the difficulty now in so many instances in determining the parentage and ancestral home in England of so many of the Colonial fathers. Their thought was to found new families in the New World rather than to preserve the links to the old. Their eyes were turned to the future, rather than to the past. Communication with the Old World was infrequent, their lives were strenuous, and exacting, and for two or more generations allowed of little thought beyond the means of subsistence and the protection of themselves and families from hostile foes. Do we wonder that even the educated and more intelligent had uncertain knowledge as to who their English grandfathers or great-grandfathers were?

It is the pride of English families to be able to trace their lineage to Norman ancestors and to the time of William the Conqueror, and this feeling is alive to considerable extent in their American descendants. But nobler than the conquests of the Norman Duke and his ruthless followers was the work of our American ancestors who conquered the wilds of the unbroken forests of the Atlantic coasts and the work of their later descendants, the pioneers of the Great Middle West. And today Americans are thinking less of Norman or English ancestry and take more pride in descent from the colonists of the 17th Century, whose heroic struggles founded a Republic where civil and religious liberty could be fostered and find an abiding home.

FIRST GENERATION

FIRST GENERATION

1. JOSEPH PARSONS is believed to have been the first of the name in America. He was known as Cornet Joseph, from the military title which he, in later years, bore; the Cornet being the color-bearer and third in command in a British troop or regiment of cavalry. The best attainable evidence is that he was born at or near Great Torrington, Devonshire, England, about 1618, and came to America about 1635, possibly earlier. On July 15, 1636, he was a witness to the deed of cession made by the Indians to William Pynchon and others of a large tract of land on both sides of the Connecticut River, then called Agawan but later Springfield, the consideration being 18 yards of wampum, 18 coats, 18 hatchets, 18 hoes and 18 knives, a copy of which deed can be seen in the recorder's office in Springfield, Mass. (It is published in full in Vol. 15, New England Hist. and Biog. Register, pp. 140-141.) At that time he was about seventeen years of age, as he testified at the March term of the court at Northampton, in 1662, on proof of said deed. This deed was made but sixteen years after the landing of the Pilgrims, and but six years after the first settlement of Boston. Munsell's "American Ancestry" states that Joseph Parsons came over with William Pynchon, the leader of the Springfield colonists, who was one of the patentees of the grant by the Crown to the Massachusetts Bay Company, and a fellow passenger with Winthrop, who came over in 1630. It is probable that he was a protégé and possibly a relative of Pynchon, which would account for their intimate social and business relations, both with him and later with his son, John Pynchon. In 1646 Joseph's younger brother, Benjamin, known in history as Deacon Benjamin, first appeared in Springfield, where he and his family continued to reside for the greater part of his life. He was a man of great ability and purity of character, and who exerted a wide influence in laying the foundation of a Christian state. On Nov. 2, 1646 (O. S.), Joseph Parsons married Mary Bliss, the daughter of Thomas Bliss, of Hartford, Conn., who was a son of Thomas Bliss, of Belstone Parish, Devonshire, England, from whom is descended the Bliss family of this country.

It is possible that Joseph may have resided for a time prior to his marriage in Hartford, and it is further possible that Joseph and Mary may have known each other in youth in old Devonshire. We find from the Springfield records that in 1646 Joseph Parsons was elected town surveyor, which indicated that he was a young man of good education and enjoyed the confidence of his fellow colonists, as it was a very responsible office, where property lines for ownership and for roads and all civil divisions, had to be first made in a wilderness country.

The records also show that in 1647 he was a taxpayer with forty-two others in Springfield. In 1650 he was overseer of fences and, in 1651, he was elected a selectman, the highest town office in the gift of the people.

In 1655 he, with others, purchased from the Indians a large tract of country at "Noltwog," now Northampton, Mass., where he was selectman for several years, except the second year when, as the record shows, he paid the town twenty shillings not to elect him to any office, so that he might attend to his private affairs. At a town meeting, held February, 1656, "It was agreed that Joseph Parsons, paying twenty shillings, shall be freed from any office in the town of Northampton for one year."

In 1658 he was a witness to a deed by the Indian Chiefs to Major John Pyncheon of lands comprising the town of Hadley, and afterwards was one of the Agents of Northampton who negotiated the sale of these lands to the people of Hadley.

About 1655 he purchased of William Pyncheon, for the sum of twelve pounds, Sterling, per year, a monopoly of the Connecticut river beaver or fur trade, in which, as appears from his accounts with Pyncheon recently published, he was for many years successfully engaged.

In 1664 he was one of a committee of the town of Northampton sent "to deliver the mind of the town to the Indians," who desired land upon which to build a fort, the conditions being "that the Indians do not work, game or carry burdens within the town on the Sabbath nor pow wow here, nor anywhere else, nor get liquor nor cider nor get drunk; nor admit Indians from without the town, nor break down the fences but go over a stile at one place, nor admit among them the murderers, Calamanc Wut-towhan and Pacquellant, nor hunt, nor kill cattle, sheep or swine with their dogs"

From 1672 to 1678 he was Cornet of the Hampshire Troop, commanded by Capt. John Pynchon, the first troop of horse formed in Western Massachusetts, and, in 1679, he was a member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Boston, the first regularly organized military company in America.

He became a large land owner in Springfield, Hadley and Northampton. He also owned two valuable lots in Boston, a residence and storehouse on the harbor.

In 1668, a sawmill being needed, a grant of twenty acres was made, but the grantee failing in his contract, Parsons purchased it and made it a success.

In the spring of 1671 Joseph Parsons, with three others, went on an exploring expedition to what is now Northfield, Mass., and concluded a bargain with the Indians for a tract of over 10,000 acres of land on the "great river" (Connecticut). His intimate acquaintance with the Indians as a fur trader, taking him to their villages up and down the Connecticut valley, made him invaluable in any transactions with them. It is a fact that has been strangely overlooked, or ignored, that most of the early settlers of New England occupied their lands by actual purchase from the Indians. Many historical writers have stated that William Penn was the first to purchase a conveyance from the Indians, and he has had much praise for doing what had many times been done in New England long before Penn came to America.

His military record is best shown by an extract from the "register of the officers and members of the New Hampshire Society of Colonial Wars," viz.:

"Parsons, Cornet Joseph, 1618-1683, member of Capt. John Pynchon's Hampshire County troop; King Philip's War, 1672-1678; appointed Cornet Hampshire troop Oct. 7, 1678; member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of Boston, 1679; served in the French and Indian wars, Colony of Massachusetts Bay. He was a partner of William Pynchon in the fur trade of the Connecticut valley and was the chief founder of Northampton, Mass."

Cornet Joseph Parsons was preëminently a business man, with the courage and enterprise which peculiarly fitted him to take a leading part in the settlement of a new country. Savage says that he was "the most enterprising man in the Connecticut valley for a quarter of a century," and Burt, in his Monograph, says that "with perhaps a single exception he was the most prosperous and successful of any of the settlers and acquired a handsome property, the largest, unless it be that of John Pynchon, of any in Hampshire County, an evident indication of his foresight and enterprise."

The public records of his day, as well as contemporary writings still in existence, testify to his remarkable activity and force of character. That he was a man of integrity and justice is shown by the trust reposed in him in his frequent transactions with the Indians, so necessary in connection with public affairs in those times; while the numerous offices which he filled during his long life testify to the regard of his fellow colonists. He had in an eminent degree those traits which qualified him to be a founder of this new civilization, and a worthy companion among those who made New England known and honored.

In the historical catalog of the Northampton First Church, 1661 to 1891, by Rev. Solomon Clark, at page 9, is this record: "Joseph Parsons united with the little band at Northampton in 1655. Had the title of Cornet. Kept the first house of entertainment in the place. The Parsons family there descended from him," and at page 11, with reference to his son, "Joseph Parsons, Jr., third Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, a man of large business, public and private, lived with his wife sixty years, reared twelve children, all married; had large families. His son, Joseph, was pastor at Lebanon, Conn., 1700-8."

Cornet Joseph Parsons spent the last years of his life in Springfield, Mass., where he died, Oct. 9, 1683. His wife, Mary Bliss, was born in England in 1620, and died at Springfield, Jan. 29, 1712.

A picture is given of the house said to have been erected by Cornet Joseph Parsons at Northampton, in 1658, and occupied by him many years until his return to Springfield about 1680. Desiring to have these facts corroborated I sent a copy of the picture to a merchant of Northampton, who referred my letter to the present occupant of the house, who kindly sent me the following letter, with permission to publish it, if I so desired:

"58 Bridge St., Northampton, Mass.

"MR. HENRY PARSONS,

"DEAR SIR:

"Your information that this is the house of Cornet Joseph Parsons is correct. We have always set its date 1657, as it was probably built within three years of the settling of Northampton (1654). The house has been in the possession of two families only since its erection. The Parsons occupied it till 1807, Nathaniel Parsons being the last. It then passed into the hands of Daniel Wright, Esq., who was my great-grandfather, and has continued in his family ever since. It has just become the property of my brothers and myself, and as we are direct descendants of Cornet Joseph it again enters into the possession of the original proprietors. The old house is an interesting curiosity, showing the marks of the axes which hewed the timbers from the forest.

"Very sincerely yours,

"ANNA CATHARINE BLISS

"July 10, 1909."

The following contains a sentiment which, I believe, will receive hearty endorsement:

"Dear to my heart are the ancestral dwellings of America,
Dearer than if they were haunted by ghosts of Old World splendor;
These are the homes that were built by the brave beginners of a Nation,

They are simple enough to be great and full of a friendly dignity."—Henry Van Dyke, in Scribner's Magazine, Nov., 1909.

Witchcraft

The following incident in the life of the first ancestral mother of the Parsons family in America, as illustrative of the times, I am sure will interest her descendants.

Mary, the wife of Cornet Joseph Parsons, was the daughter of Thomas Bliss, of Hartford, Conn., a son of Thomas Bliss, of Belstone Parish, Devonshire, England. She was born in England in 1620 and came to this country with her parents. The Bliss family soon became prominent in the Connecticut Valley, and has ever since been honorably known in the history of the country. In 1656, and soon after the removal of the Parsons family from Springfield to Northampton, Joseph Parsons brought an action for slander against Sarah Bridgman, the wife of James Bridgman, charging that Sarah had accused Mary, his wife, of being a witch. The record of this notable case will be found at considerable length in Trumbull's History of Northampton, Vol. 1, pp. 43-50; also on pages 228-234, copied from the original record now on file in Boston. I will give only its substance.

Several Springfield families, including the Bridgmans, had settled in Northampton. It seems that Mary Parsons' strong personality had aroused enmity in Springfield, which followed her to Northampton, and neighborhood gossip did the rest and she was accused of being a witch. Margaret Bliss, the mother of Mary Parsons, hearing these stories lost no time in interviewing the author of these stories.

"Goodwife Bridgman was equal to the occasion and told her to her face that she did hear that her daughter was suspected to be a witch." Exasperated by this slanderous gossip, Joseph Parsons brought this action to defend the reputation of his wife. The belief in witchcraft was common at that time and the charge involved an unholy partnership with the devil. We, of the 20th Century, find it difficult to appreciate the situation as it existed 250 years ago, but the trials, persecutions, and punishments for witchcraft which took place in Massachusetts, a few years later, are the darkest blots upon its otherwise glorious history. The record of the testimony upon the trial which followed arouses mingled feelings of mirth and sadness and can be summarized somewhat as follows:

Following hard upon the heels of any disagreement, or quarrel, between Mary Parsons and any member of the Bridgman family, a fatal disease would seize upon some horse, cow, or pig, belonging to the Bridgman family and, as the disease could not be accounted for in any other way, it must be the result of Mary's uncanny influence exercised by way of revenge. Mrs. Bridgman's child died and she said she thought Mary Parsons had bewitched it.

Her eleven-year-old son fractured his knee, which seems to have been very bunglingly set by the "Chirurgeon," and the little fellow in his agony cried out that Mary Parsons was pulling his leg off, and that he saw her on the shelf. When she went away he said that a black mouse followed her.

William Hannum testified that he had a "falling out" with Mary Parsons about the use of her brother John's (John Bliss) oxen. After that he lost, by disease, a "lusty cow" and a "lusty swine" that had before been well and healthy. In a day or two after, while on his way to Windsor, with his cart and oxen, one of the cattle was bitten by a rattlesnake and died there. "These things," he said, "doe something run in my mind that I cannot have my mind from this woman."

A Mrs. Hannum was also a witness. She lived a short distance from Mrs. Parsons on Market Street. She testified that she had "been warned by some of Windsor and some of Norwattack (Northampton) to beware how I had to do with Mary, the wife of Joseph Parsons." Notwithstanding this warning, she spun yarn for Mrs. Parsons and there were disputes between them as to the quantity. Then Mrs. Parsons had asked that one of Mrs. Hannum's daughters might go to live with her, which had been refused. Then her daughter, "though formerly healthy, yet this summer hath been sickly and unhelpful to me which, though I know it may be by God's own immediate hand, yet it causes some jealousyes in me against Mary because it fell out within three or four days after I had given her a full denial of my daughter's service."

And Trumbull adds: "Here is the covert insinuation of uncanny dealings by Mrs. Parsons. The daughter, charmed with the idea of living with one of the richest families in town was disappointed at the refusal of her mother and sulked and wouldn't help about the house work."

The decision of the court was in favor of the plaintiff and against Mrs. Bridgman, and she was ordered to make public acknowledgment of her fault at Northampton and Springfield, and that her husband, James Bridgman, pay to plaintiff £10 and £7 1s. cost of court.

And Trumbull makes the following comment on page 45: "Mary Parsons was apparently a proud and nervous woman, haughty in demeanor and inclined to carry things with a high hand, she belonged to the aristocracy and evidently considered herself a dame of considerable importance. A woman of forcible speech and domineering ways she was not unwilling that her neighbors should have the benefit of her opinions on any subject touching herself and her family. A case so flimsy and frivolous and founded on jealousy, prejudice and superstition, conducted before honorable and sensible men, could not well have reached any other decision.

"To that community, however, in those days of belief in the supernatural it was serious and significant.

"Such gossip was an affront that Esq. Parsons could not overlook in a town in which he ranked as one of the first in worldly possessions."

But the charge of witchcraft against this Mary Parsons did not end with the judgment in the slander suit.

Eighteen years after the charge was renewed and at about the time of the Salem witchcraft trials. The occasion was the death of Mary, a daughter of the same James Bridgman, and then the wife of Samuel Bartlett. The trial occurred in Boston and is referred to on pages 228-233, Vol. 1, of Trumbull's History of Northampton. At page 233 the author says, "the fact that Mrs. Parsons voluntarily appeared before the court 'desiring to clear herself of such an execrable crime,' and that subsequently she argued her own case before the court must not be overlooked.

On both these occasions she met her accusers boldly, protesting her innocence, and showing 'how clear she was of such a crime.' In this trial Mrs. Parsons was 'called to speak for herself' and from the meagre report upon record, undoubtedly did so most effectively."

In the Bliss genealogy, by J. H. Bliss (1881), pages 30-31, appear the record of the marriage of Joseph Parsons to Mary Bliss, and this mention of the witchcraft trial: "Mary Bliss, the mother of this family, two years after the birth of her youngest child, was charged with witchcraft by some of her neighbors who were envious of their prosperity and endeavored in this way to disgrace them.

"She was sent to Boston for trial, where the jury gave her a full acquittal of the crime and she returned home to Northampton, from where they moved back to Springfield in 1679. Just after her acquittal in Boston her son, Ebenezer, was killed by the Indians and those who had been instrumental in bringing her to trial said, 'Behold, though human judges may be bought off, God's vengeance neither turns aside nor slumbers.' It is said that she possessed great beauty and talents but was not very amiable."

Mrs. Mary Parsons survived her husband twenty-seven years, dying in Springfield, in 1712, aged ninety-two. Her name as Widow Parsons appears in the Springfield records as a taxpayer and owner of real estate to the time of her death.

In the Annals of Witchcraft, by Drake, published in 1869, I find the following account of the trial of Mrs. Mary Parsons:

"1674. Mrs. Mary Bartlett, wife of Samuel Bartlett, of Northampton, having died in July of this year, and as her complaint was not understood by such 'Cherurgeons' as the neighborhood afforded, a ready solution of the case was found by attributing it to witchcraft. The next step was to fix upon the witch; and, strange to say, in this instance, one of the most, if not the most accomplished and of the highest standing in the place, was fixed upon. This was Mrs. Mary Parsons, whose husband, Mr. Joseph Parsons, was one of the wealthiest men of Northampton.

"It is conjectured that the standing of Mrs. Parsons had much to do with the accusation. She may have been somewhat exclusive in the choice of her associates, and even of haughty manners towards the parties by whom she was singled out for persecution, but as to this nothing is positively known.

"On the 26th Sept., about two months after the death of Mrs. Bartlett, a court met at Springfield. Mr. Bartlett in the meantime had bestirred himself to procure evidence to sustain his charges of witchcraft against Mrs. Parsons in the shape of depositions. This lady, knowing what was going on, did not wait to be summoned, but appeared before the court in person. The substance of her speech was that 'she did assert her own innocence, often maintaining how clear she was of such a crime, and that the righteous God knew her innocence, and she left her cause in His hands.' But her protestations had little or no effect upon the court of Springfield, and that court at once proceeded to do all which lay in its jurisdiction. It 'appointed a jury of soberdized, chaste women to make diligent search of the body of Mary Parsons, whether any marks of witchcraft appear, who gave in their account to the court on oath of what they found.'

"Whether they found anything extraordinary in this search is not known, although it is said that the report which they made, together with the evidence was forwarded to the Governor and Magistrates at Boston. The accused was also ordered to appear before them, and was bound over for her future appearance in the sum of Fifty Pounds, her husband becoming bound in that sum.

"On the 2d March, 1675, she was indicted by the grand jury and sent to prison to await trial. On the 13th of May following she was tried on the charge of witchcraft, 'in that she had, not having the fear of God before her eyes, entered into familiarity with the Devil and committed sundry acts of witchcraft on the person or persons of one or more.'

"She, of course, pleaded 'not guilty' and she was cleared by the jury.

"It may be worthy of notice that at this time the Hon. John Leverett was Governor and Generals Gookin and Denison were assistants. These were three of the most enlightened men of the time and they doubtless exerted a benign influence on the jury.

Hence witch finders were discouraged and the country was relieved for a time.

"An attempt was, however, made against John Parsons, son of Joseph and Mary Parsons, and a quantity of evidence was made up to prove his 'familiarity with the Devil,' but the county court did not think the evidence strong enough, or they had not faith enough in the weakness of the Governor and his assistants to send the accused to Boston and the case was abandoned."

SECOND GENERATION

SECOND GENERATION

2 JOSEPH² PARSONS (Joseph¹), son of Cornet Joseph¹ and Mary (Bliss) Parsons, was b. Nov. 1, 1647, at Springfield, and d. at Northampton, Mass., Nov., 1729. The following sketch is largely taken from the record compiled by Gen. Lewis B. Parsons, 1900:

"Joseph² Parsons, 'Esquire,' as his name appears in the public records, and as it may still be seen on his tombstone in the Northampton cemetery, which, with that of his wife, I had recut in 1897, was born in 1647, and was the oldest son of Cornet Joseph Parsons.

"During his long life of eighty-two years he was conspicuous as a public man in affairs of church and state.

"For some years he was a Justice of the Peace under the old English form, with the rights and duties, and was said to have been the last of the kind in New England.

"In 1711 he was commissioned by Gov. Dudley Captain of a foot company in the Hampshire regiment commanded by Col. Partridge, and was active in the military service of the colony. In civil life he was often a selectman of the town, as he was also for more than twenty-three years a Judge of the County Court. He was elected a representative of the General Court at Boston many times, the last being in his seventy-seventh year and he often served on important committees.

"As illustrative of the times it is of record that, serving on a committee to manage the funeral of Joseph Sheldon, a member of the General Court from Sheffield, he audited, among other bills, one for 12 shillings for a coffin and 2 pounds and 15 shillings for wine.

"His interests were large and extended over a wide territory. He was owner of both grist and sawmills at Northampton and Deerfield, and was largely interested in the iron business at Suffield and Southfield. He was one of the earliest lawyers in Western Massachusetts and was first commissioned Judge of Hampshire County Courts Oct. 16, 1696. In the history of Berkshire County (Burr 1885) we are told that on June 30, 1722, on the petition of Joseph Parsons and others of Hampshire County, the General Court granted seven miles square on the Housatonic river, in what is now the town of Sheffield.

"The records of the New Hampshire Society of Colonial Wars state that he served in King Philip's War, was one of the earliest lawyers in Western Massachusetts, was a Judge of the Hampshire County Court for twenty-three years, and was Deputy to the General Court for fourteen years, twelve from Northampton and two from Springfield."

He married, March 17, 1669, Elizabeth, daughter of Elder John and Abigail (Ford) Strong, the progenitor of the Strong family of America and the ancestor of Gov. Caleb Strong. She was born at Windsor, Conn., Feb. 29, 1648, and died at Northampton, May 11, 1737.

Copy of Will of Joseph² Parsons, Known as "Esquire Joseph"

"I, Joseph Parsons, of Northampton, in the County of Hampshire, within the Province of Massachusetts Bay in New England, being at present, through the goodness of God, of sound mind and memory, and yet through age and many infirmities, and not knowing how soon the day of my death may come, and accounting it my duty to set my house in order before I die, do by these present appoint, dispose and confirm this writing to be my last will and testament as followeth, etc.

"Imprimis. I give and bequeath to God my whole man, body and soul that made it, believing and trusting in the merits and mediation of Christ to be absolved and found righteous in Him and not by any righteousness of my own, believing and trusting that I shall be accepted in Him, and my soul with my body shall be united to live with Christ forever, and as to my body I recommend it to my Executors to inter it with a comely and Christian burial, trusting and believing a blessed resurrection and to live in glory with God forever and ever.

"Item. I order and appoint that all my just debts and dues to any and all persons, whatsoever, so soon as my executors herein-after named shall make just payment of the same.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my son, Joseph Parsons, Jr., all my expenses towards his learning, which I value at £100 and forty.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my son, David Parsons, all my expenses towards his learning, which I value at £100.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my son, John Parsons, one home lot he hath built on at £12, one quarter part of my right in Pascomuck Meadow, which he hath a deed of at £25, two acres he improves in Green Swamp at £10, about one acre and a half in Old Rainbow at £24, also two acres and a qr. Dickinsons lot, which he hath a deed of it, £20 towards building his house at nine pounds, all of which to be to him and his heirs forever, etc., at £100 total of the aforesaid sums.

"Item. To my son, Ebenezer Parsons, I give and bequeath the one-half of Wood Wards lot at the Mill pasture at £25, one-quarter of my Pascomuck lot in both Meadow and Swamp at £25, 2 acres or thereabouts in the Drain Swamp at £10, 21 acres of land or thereabouts in the Walnut division at £20, one acre and three-quarters of land in Old Rainbow £24, to a horse and moveables at £6, one-third part of the corn mill and sawmill, a remainder of £10 to be to him, his heirs forever, in the whole £120.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my son, Josias Parsons, 2 acres of land in Hoggsbladder at £12, one acre and a half in Old Rainbow at £24, one-quarter part of my right in Pascomuck Meadow at £25, two acres at the Drain Swamp at £10, about two acres at Walnut Tree division £20, in moveable goods £9, one hundred pounds in all to be to him and his heirs forever.

"Item. To my son, Daniel Parsons, in money I give him to purchase Capt. John Parsons part of the home lot at Springfield at £40, also one-half part of my 3d part of the home lot and at Springfield, excepting any part of said allotment I bought of my brother, Samuel, at £40, one-quarter part of the town sawmill at £12, in moveables at £8, to a half sawmill, where the Iron Works stood at £6, in all one hundred and six pounds, to be to him and his heirs forever, etc.

"Item. To my son, Moses Parsons, all my right of lands at Durrom at eighty pounds. In moveable estate at £20, in all one hundred pounds, to him and his heirs forever.

"Item. I gave and bequeath to my son, Noah Parsons, one-quarter part of my right in Pascomuck Meadow at £25, one acre and a half out of Lies lot in Old Rainbow at £24, about 2 acres of land at the Walnut Tree division at Blisses lot at £20, to one-half my lot in Pynchon's Meadow at £12, in moveable goods nine pounds, all at £100, to him and his heirs forever.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Elizabeth Strong, thirty pounds, which she hath already received.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my daughter, Abigail Clark, thirty pounds, which she hath already received.

"Item. All the rest of my estate in houseing, lands and moveable goods, of what kind soever, to be for the maintenance as of myself while I live, so to my wife after my decease as long as she lives or remains my widow.

"Item. After my decease and the decease of my wife all debts and funeral charges being discharged and paid, all the estate that then remains shall be disposed as followeth. To Elizabeth Strong £70, and to Abigail Clark £70, to be paid to the two daughters aforesaid, and of the moveable goods and all the rest of the estate to be equally divided, both real and personal, to all my sons aforesaid, with this proviso, that those of my sons that have over and above one hundred pounds in the aforesaid gifts, it shall come in the division aforesaid, and be accounted as so much of their share, as also after my wife's decease, of the aforesaid divideable estate aforesaid. Noah Parsons, my son, shall have the houseing and homestead that we now live in, the lot on both sides of the brook or little river or gutter to be accounted at £120, and to be regulated in his share with the rest of his brethren at two hundred pounds.

"Item. I ordain, constitute and appoint my beloved sons, John Parsons and Ebenezer Parsons, to be joint executors of this, my last will and testament, annulling and making void and of no effect, all former will or testaments by me made or pretended to be made, and this and this only to be accounted to all interests and purposes, to be my last will and testament, and no other.

"In confirmation of which I have hereunto set my hand and seal; this I give to my grandson, John Parsons, Jr., thirty pounds in or as money.

(Seal) "JOSEPH PARSONS.

"Signed, seal and delivered in presence and witness of

"PRESERVED CLAPP,

"SAMUEL ALLEN,

"JONATHAN STRONG.

"Probated before John Stoddard, Judge of Probate of Hampshire County.

About 1709 a noted Colony went out from Northampton to Durham, Ct., under the leadership of Rev. Nathaniel Chauncey, and among them were Samuel² Parsons and his family and his nephew, Moses³ Parsons, and others of the Strong and Lyman families allied by marriage. To this Colony from other places also came the Seward, Wadsworth, Robinson, Norton, Coe, and other families. The Swards later settled in Florida, Orange County, New York, where Wm. H. Seward, Secretary of State during the Civil War, was born, and the Wadsworths removed to Geneseo, Livingston County, New York.

Rev. Nathaniel Chauncey was the first pastor and Rev. Elizar Goodrich the second pastor of the church organized at Durham. As recorded in Fowler's History of Durham, the founders of that church entered into the following pledge, as to personal conduct.

After a lengthy preamble, reciting their shortcomings, it says: "Accordingly, in order hereunto, we do all before the Lord this day declare upon the covenant obligations that we are under, that we will watch unto the Dutys and carefully avoid ye Evils now to be mentioned.

"1st. We will continually attend the Dutys of God's worship in Public, Private and Secret, not allowing ourselves in ye neglect of any of His Holy Ordinances through carelessness, contempt, or any sinful excuse.

"2d. We will carefully watch against all Irreverence in ye worship of God, and all profanations, Rash Swearing, or any other way in wch. it is or may be taken in vain.

"3d. We will strictly observe the Christian Sabbath, viz. one whole day in seven. Seasonably beginning and duly continuing ye same and carefully watching against worldly thoughts, words and work on that day.

"4th. We will carefully endeavor to discharge the several Dutys of our several Places, and Relations as our Superiors, Inferiors and Equals. Particularly we will Honour, Submit to, and obey those whom God hath set over us, whether in Family, Church or Commonwealth. We will look well to our Household and keep our children and servants in subjection. Instruct them in the principles of our Holy Religion, and endeavor to restrain them from all profaneness and Immorality.

"5th. We will as much as in us lye, live peaceably with all men.

"6th. We will be careful to maintain a Chaste Conversation watching agst. all ye Occasions and preventives to uncleanness especially.

"7th. We will mind our own Business and strictly observe ye Rules of Righteousness in our commerce and dealing one with another, watching agst. all violations of it by Deceit, Oppression and all unjust and dishonest dealings wsoever.

"8th. We will carefully take heed to speak ye truth in our converse one with Another, Carefully avoiding all lying, Slandering, Backbiting, Reviling and Promise breaking.

"9th. We will mutually watch over one another, giving and receiving Reproof as becomes Christians.

"10th. We will in our Sevl Capacity bear due testimony or witness agst. all Profaneness and Immorality and not withhold our Testimony when it shall be necessary for ye converting and Punishing Offenders unless some Religious Tye of Conscience founded on ye word of God do require secrecy.

"11th. We will watch agst. the prevailing of a worldly covetous spirit.

"12th. We will watch against all Intemperance in ye use of Lawful things and in particular agst. excessive drinking.

"13th. We will not allow ourselves in unnecessary frequenting Public or Private drinking houses, and

"In order to our faithful and more acceptable performances of ye above expressed, we will set ourselves seriously and dilligently to seek all needful Grace and help from God."

Copy of Will of Daniel³ Parsons

"In the name of God Amen. I, Daniel Parsons, of Springfield, in the County of Hampshire and Province of Massachusetts Bay, in New England, Yoeman, do make this my last will and testament as followeth:

"Imprimis. I will, order and direct that all my just debts and funeral expenses be paid by my son, Abner Parsons, and my two grandsons, Daniel Parsons, Jr., and Gideon Parsons, out of such property of my estate as I have hereinafter given to them, that is to say, that the one-half of my debts and funeral charges be paid by my son, Abner aforesaid, and the other half of my debts and funeral expenses be paid by my said grandsons aforesaid, viz., Gideon and Daniel, in equal parts.

Item. I give and devise to my beloved son, Aaron Parsons, and his heirs my scheme lot lying on sixteen acre plain in Springfield, containing about one hundred and fifty acres; also my meadow called Four Mile Pond, meadow containing about eight acres, to have and to hold the same to him, my son Aaron, and his heirs forever.

Item. I give and devise to my beloved son, Abner Parsons, and his heirs my dwelling house, and the northerly part of my home lot adjoining, bounded northerly on Col. Worthington's land, westerly on Connecticut River, southerly partly on a line dividing my said home lot in two equal parts, and partly on my garden fence and wood yard fence south of my house, being the one moiety of my said home lot, and also all that other part thereof which is included within my garden and wood yard and the fence aforesaid. I also give and devise to my said son Abner and his heirs the northerly moiety of my meadow land on the east side of the street opposite to my dwelling house, also the northerly moiety of my lot of land in the Plainfield. Also a part of my lot of land on the west side of Connecticut River at Farm Meadow, that is to say the whole of the same, be it more or less, except eight acres on the northerly side thereof, which I have hereinafter given to my grandsons Daniel and Gideon. I also give and devise to my said son Abner and his heirs the southerly moiety of my lot of land at Glover's Pond, being a scheme lot, containing about seventy acres in ye whole, also the southerly moiety of my lot and land at Dirty Gutter, which formerly belonged to my late father, Joseph Parsons, deceased, and contains in the whole about one hundred acres. Also my corn mill on Chicopee River with the land and stream thereto belonging and privileges appertaining; also two ten-acre lots of land lying adjoining together at the northerly part of the first parish in Springfield, and bounded partly on land late of Josiah Dwight, Esq., deceased.

"Also my tract of land of about forty acres originally granted to my father, lying on the west side of Connecticut River and bounded westerly on the township of Westfield; all which pieces of land lie in Springfield aforesaid, to have and to hold all and singular the said given and granted premises, to him my said son Abner Parsons, his heirs and assigns forever. Subject nevertheless to and chargeable with the payment of the one moiety of my debts and funeral charges and the sum of fourteen pounds lawful money to my daughter Miriam, and one other sum of fourteen pounds to my daughter Eunice, hereinafter mentioned. I also give and bequeath to my said son Abner, his executors and administrators forever, all my neet cattle, horses, swine and sheep, all my household furniture, husbandry tools and the whole of my personal estate.

"Item. I give and devise to my two beloved grandsons, Gideon Parsons and Daniel Parsons, Jr., children of my late son, Daniel Parsons, deceased, and their heirs the dwelling house they now dwell in, and the southerly part of my home lot adjoining, bounded southerly on the ministry lot, westerly on the Connecticut River, northerly partly by a line dividing my said home lot in two equal parts, and partly by garden fence and wood yard fence, south of my dwelling house, and easterly on the street partly, and partly on my garden fence, and easterly on moiety of said home lot excepting such part thereof as it is contained in my garden and wood yard before given to my son Abner. Also the southerly moiety of my said meadow and land on the east side of the street and opposite the said home lot. Also the northerly moiety of my said lot at Dirty Gutter. Also the southerly moiety of my said lot of land in the Plainfield. Also part of my said lot of land at Farm Meadow, viz., eight acres of the same on the northerly side thereof. To have and to hold all and singular the said granted premises to them, the said Daniel and Gideon, and their heirs and assigns forever, equally to be divided between them, q. d. the one moiety thereof to the said Daniel and his heirs, and the other moiety thereof to the said Gideon and his heirs, they the said Gideon and Daniel paying the one moiety of my debts and funeral charges, and also paying to my daughter Abigail fourteen pounds, and to my granddaughter, Esther Parsons, five shillings, to the payment of which said debts, funeral charges and legacies last afore mentioned, the said devised premises are hereby subjected and made charged and chargeable.

"Item. I give unto my beloved daughters, Miriam, wife of James Warriner, and Eunice, wife of Abel Hancock, the sum of fourteen pounds lawful money each, that is to say, each of them fourteen pounds, to be paid to them respectively in two years after my decease by my son Abner.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my beloved daughter, Abigail, wife of Benjamin Horton, fourteen pounds, and to my said granddaughter, Esther Parsons, five shillings, to be paid to them respectively within two years after my decease by my said grandsons, Daniel and Gideon, out of such part of my estate as I have given to them and have before ordered, and all the rest and residue of my estate, real and personal, whatsoever or wheresoever, I give, bequeath and devise the same to my son Abner, his heirs and assigns forever.

"And I do hereby constitute and appoint my sons, Aaron Parsons and Abner Parsons, executors of this my last will and testament, and hereby revoke and annul all other former wills and testaments, legacies and devises by me at any time made or given and publish and declare this to be my last will and testament.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this twenty-sixth day of December, in the thirteenth year of his Majesty's Reign, One thousand seven hundred and seventy-two.

"DANIEL PARSONS (Seal)

"Signed, sealed, published and declared by the said Daniel Parsons as and for his last will and testament in presence of us who have hereunto subscribed our names as witnesses thereto in presence of the testator and each other.

In a pamphlet entitled, "Some Old Northampton Houses," written by Harriet F. Kneeland for the "Betty Allen Chapter of the D. A. R." of Northampton (1909), are the following descriptions of two old Parsons houses, one built by Isaac⁴ Parsons and the other built by Noah,⁴ son of Noah³ Parsons, the pictures of both of which are shown herein.

The Isaac⁴ Parsons House

"Another Parsons home of somewhat later date than the one already mentioned" (the one built 1658) "is the large, comfortable looking house on the Park opposite the old cemetery. Built in 1743, by Isaac Parsons, great-grandson of Cornet Joseph, this house stands upon land which has been in the possession of the Parsons family for 234 years.

"Being outside the Stockade, for some time the family retired at night for safety to the house of a neighbor, whether the old Inn or some other we are not told.

"The grooves in the window sills still show where the heavy wooden shutters were put up for protection against attack by Indians. The finished beams across the ceiling and the old wainscot, also still remain, and the great fire place of the kitchen boasts the wonder of two high brick ovens. Think of the pies and bread and election cake of those more than 150 year's bakings.

"And the great room above, with its old paneling and alternate stripes of red, black, orange and white paper—how long is the procession of guests and how varied their dreams during those 150 years. There is a tradition that after the surrender of Burgoyne some British soldiers were quartered here until other disposal could be made of them.

HOUSE AT NORTHAMPTON MASS., BUILT BY ISAAC PARSONS
IN 1743.

"Doubtless the stiff Puritan manners, and quaint morning worship excited their mirth, and they behaved in such unseemly fashion as to excite the wrath of the good man of the house, who read next morning the chapter of II Kings, which contains the verse, 'Because thy rage against me and thy tumult is come up into mine ears, therefor I will put my hook in thy nose and my bridle in thy lips and I will turn thee back by the way thou camest.' A member of the family says, 'Tradition fails to tell us how personal an application was made of the reading, but it is known that thereafter the officers refrained from appearing at morning prayers.'

"That the family possessed the same keen sense of humor which characterizes it today, is shown by another tale of those same English officers. One morning when the Valet had succeeded in arranging to his satisfaction the last buckle of his master's shoe, the little old farmer lifted his foot, clad in its heavy homemade cowhide, that a like service might be performed for him. How delightful would be a picture of the long procession of children of this old home, the little Puritans with their long seams and catechism, the older naughty Sally of later date, who when father and mother were well out of town on a visit, took up the precious parlor carpet and invited her friends to a wicked dancing party, all the merry rout who played hide and seek in the great attic and dared each other to enter the dark dungeon like room behind the chimney. Long may it stand, this old home of delightful associations and sacred memories."

37 AARON⁴ PARSONS (Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Daniel³ Parsons, married (1) Oct. 2, 1732, Mercy, daughter of John and Dorcas Atkinson, born 1713, died July 11, 1750; (2) Feb. 19, 1752, Experience Robinson, who died May 14, 1789. He was named after his father's cousin Aaron, son of Lieut. Samuel² Parsons, who married (1) Elizabeth, daughter of Aaron Cook, the devoted friend of the regicides Goffe and Whalley, and who settled in Durham, Conn.

Aaron⁴ went to Wilbraham in 1737 with his brother Daniel, Jr., "where his mother owned land in the 2d and 3d divisions of land on the east of the great river in Springfield," as the locality was then designated.

In Stebbins' History of Springfield, p. 202, it is stated that Aaron Parsons was a member of the Company of Capt. Luke Hotchkiss in the French War from Apr. 3, 1755, to Jan. 3, 1756, and was at the battle near the southern extremity of Lake George against Baron Dieskan. In the same battle Private Noah Grant, the great-grandfather of U. S. Grant, was killed.

It will be remembered that Sir William Johnson commanded the American forces in that expedition and for his services he received his title of Baronet, and a gift of five thousand pounds from the English Parliament.

In Jan., 1738, the name of Aaron Parsons is found on the valuation and assessment lists intrusted to Constable John Hitchcock for property in the Chicopee, part of Springfield town. He was a member of the Springfield church at that time. The inscription on his grave stone is, "In memory of Mr. Aaron Parsons, who died Aug. 4, 1795, aged 83 years."

We have no record of the parentage of his second wife, Experience Robinson, who succeeded as step-mother of his nine young children. She certainly was a woman of great courage to assume the responsibility of the care, education and training of this large family from two to fifteen years of age. She died in 1789, at what age we have no record, but she was a wife and step-mother for thirty-seven years. He, and his sons, lived in an important period in our country's history, he taking part in the Indian and French Wars, and his sons in the Revolutionary War and the events that followed.

The Noah⁴ Parsons House

"The Parsons homestead under the big elm on lower South Street was built by Noah Parsons, also a great-grandson of the first Joseph, in 1755, on land which was part of his father's home lot. Brother of our own Betty Parsons Allen, who must have been a frequent visitor at this house, he married in 1755, Phebe Bartlett, who, according to Jonathan Edwards, was converted at the age of four years. And certainly the story of her experience is most remarkable, as told by him and vouched for by her father and mother 'of whose veracity,' he says, 'none that knew them can doubt.' She was the mother of twelve children, and a long and beautiful life showed the reality of her religion and inspired the respect and love of all who knew her. The story of the tree, if one may venture to put it in so few words, is, that Noah Parsons and his brother Timothy, in August, 1755, each brought from the meadows a small elm tree. Noah's tree is now standing, the other died many years ago. I have heard my grandfather say that he remembered when all the branches were cut off close to the trunk, and an examination of the tree shows the marks of the cutting. This was very early in 1800. Counting from Noah Parsons, Senior, in 1712, who probably owned all the land from Mr. Williams' place to Maple Street, this homestead has been the possession of this branch of the Parsons family for 195 years, and many noble men and women have grown to manhood and womanhood beneath this roof tree. For more than 150 years has this beautiful elm looked down on the children playing about its roots, and upon the town growing up about it, and for more than 150 springs has it sent forth the glory of its dainty brown and gold blossoms and shining leaves, the delight of all who have eyes to see."

42 TIMOTHY⁴ PARSONS (Noah,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), the youngest child of Noah,³ b. June 22, 1738; d. Feb. 22, 1822; m. Dec. 1, 1773, Martha Hubbard.

47 REV. STEPHEN⁴ PARSONS (Aaron,³ Lieut. Samuel,² Joseph¹), b. Sept. 5, 1748, at Middlefield, Conn.; d. Jan. 7, 1820, at Denmark (or Lowville), N. Y. He married (1) Nov. 30, 1769, Elizabeth Hambleton, born Mar. 27, 1751. She died Feb. 11, 1777. He married (2) Apr. 29, 1778, Annie Coe, b. Jan. 9, 1747, dau. of Joseph and Abigail (Curtis) Coe. (Her parentage is in the "Coe Genealogy," but she was probably a widow, as in the record of marriages at Middletown, Conn., her name is given as Annie Cornwall.) She died Sept. 29, 1781. He married (3) Oct. 31, 1782, Sarah Johnson. He was connected with that branch of the Congregational Church then known as "Separatists" and was ordained to the ministry in 1788 and was pastor of a church in Middletown, Conn., seven years. He became a Baptist about 1794, and about 1796 removed to Whitestown, N. Y., where he organized a Baptist church, and in 1798 he joined the Otsego Baptist Association. He was very active and zealous in his work and organized several churches in that part of New York State.

In the History of Lewis County, N. Y., by Franklin B. Hough (1860), this mention is made of him and his family in a note at page 230 on the history of the town of West-Turin.

"Elder Stephen Parsons was thrice married and had eleven children, six of whom removed to the Black River County before he removed from Whitestown. Aaron was the oldest, died Aug. 26, 1854, aged 84. He was the father of Aaron, Jr., Sheriff in 1853 and member of Assembly in 1855.

"His sister Eleanor married Elisha Cone and died in the town Aug., 1853, aged 82. Stephen died in Denmark in 1832, aged 56. Ichabod still resides in Denmark at an advanced age. He was several years a Judge of the County Court.

"Elisha, half brother of the above, died in Pompey, N. Y., 1842. His sister Betsey married Elijah Clark, of Denmark, and died in 1833, aged 53. Comfort, eldest son by the third marriage, resides in Wales Centre, N. Y. Johnson was a physician, served in the war, and was taken prisoner. He died in Florida July 30, 1820. His sister Sally married Johnson Foster, of Turin. Grace, another sister, married Isaac Foster and died in California in 1859. Ann, the youngest, married Mr. Crane, of Denmark."

And at page 93 is another note as follows:

"Elder Parsons was born Sept. 5, 1748, and ordained to the ministry Jan. 31, 1788. He was an early, zealous and successful missionary in the Black River Settlements and active in the organization of many Baptist churches in the country. He moved from Middletown to Whitestown toward the close of the last century and in 1802 came to Leyden, from whence, after several years, he moved to this town. His sons became heads of families, and most of those of his name now living in this County are his descendants. The circumstances of his death were so peculiar that they made a deep and lasting impression upon the public mind. He had preached on a Sabbath in the forenoon from a favorite text, Ps. xc. 12. and in the afternoon from 2d Sam'l xix, 24, 'How long shall I live?' On going to his barn to feed his horse on the same day he fell from a scaffold, receiving an injury from which he died unconscious, Jan. 7, 1820, within the same week this sermon was preached."

FIFTH GENERATION

FIFTH GENERATION

This generation marks an epoch in the history of this and other New England families. Most of those who took part in the Revolutionary War were of this generation. Many of their children, after the war and the formation of the Federal Union, migrated to the new parts of New York and the Middle West, and also to the Southwest, after the Louisiana Purchase.

49 THOMAS⁵ PARSONS (Rev. Joseph,⁴ Rev. Joseph,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Rev. Joseph⁴ and Frances (Usher) Parsons, was born Sept. 18, 1735, in Bradford, Mass., and died in Parsonsfield, Me., in 1811. He married (1) Anna Poor, of Andover, Mass., who died in Effingham, N. H., May 24, 1783, aged 44; married (2) Lucy Bradbury, of Saco, Me., who died Nov. 11, 1811, aged 54. He had nine children by his first wife and ten children by his second wife. He lived for a time in Effingham, N. H., which adjoins Parsonsfield on the west. On Aug. 5, 1771, he was granted by the General Court of Massachusetts (for the Province of Maine was at that time a part of Massachusetts) the tract of land in Maine which, under his direction, was surveyed and laid out and which was named Parsonsfield in his honor. He built in 1784 a house in Parsonsfield and moved there from Effingham probably in the fall of that year for he was a resident of Parsonsfield in January, 1785.

Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Revolution).

He is mentioned in the History of Broome Co., by H. P. Smith (1885), as having located near Centre Lisle (Yorkshire), and as having two sons, Jonathan,⁶ and Erastus⁶ (see No. 581).

In the National Encyclopedia of American Biography is a sketch of Lewis Eliphalet⁷ Parsons, born in Broome Co., N. Y., Apr. 28, 1817, a son of Erastus⁶ and Jennette (Hepburn) Parsons, and a great-grandson of Jonathan Edwards. He was a distinguished lawyer, who settled in Talladega, Ala., prior to the Civil War; was a strong Union man, and was the Provisional Governor of that State after the war and during the reconstruction period.

He married in 1841, Jane Chrisman, of Kentucky, and died at Talladega, June 8, 1895.

While Provisional Governor of Alabama, at the request of President Johnson, he submitted an opinion on the question of the enfranchisement of the newly liberated slaves, which was prophetic in its suggestions. "Recognizing the fact that in time the right of suffrage would have to be accorded the negro, but deprecating immediate action as certain to arouse a racial antagonism that could not be removed by legislation; arguing that it would place in the hands of a debased race a weapon that would only be misused, and would prevent the South from gaining the repose needed to enable her to adjust herself to new conditions, and from solving her many problems unhampered by disorders provoked at the polls." Three sons survived him: George W.⁸ Parsons, of Talladega, Fla.; Hon. Lewis E.⁸ Parsons, and Joseph H.⁸ Parsons, of Birmingham, Ala.

61 REV. SILAS⁵ PARSONS (Benjamin,⁴ Capt. Ebenezer,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Benjamin⁴ and Rebecca (Sheldon) Parsons, b. at Northampton, Mass., Sept. 20, 1761; d. at Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 6, 1839; m. Mar. 6, 1782, Sarah Fiske, of Shelburn, Mass., an aunt of Pliny Fiske, who went with his nephew, Rev. Levi Parsons, as missionary to Palestine. The history of Goshen, Mass., by Hiram Barns (1881), says that its settlement began in 1762, and that a few years later, Benjamin Parsons and his sons, Ebenezer, Justin, Solomon, Silas, and Benjamin, came from Northampton. An obituary, published in the Niagara Courier of Lockport, Dec. 11, 1839, gives a sketch of his life, which is probably as reliable as any that could be prepared at this date, as his wife was then living, she dying at Lockport, Aug. 6, 1843, aged 82, and both buried in "Cold Spring Cemetery," Lockport, N. Y.

The substance is as follows: "Died in this town on the 6th inst. Rev. Silas Parsons, in the 79th year of his age. Mr. Parsons was a native of Northampton, Mass.

"At the age of 24 he made a public profession of the religion of Christ and united with the Congregational Church in Goshen, Mass. He pursued the very honorable and useful occupation of a farmer till near 40 years of age, when he devoted himself to study and was inducted into the ministry. He was first installed pastor of a church in Sudbury, Vt., where he labored 10 or 12 years with great success. A revival added nearly 100 to his church. He next settled in Greenfield, Saratoga Co., N. Y., where he preached three years. He then removed to Morrisville, Madison Co., N. Y., where he preached three years. He next located in Burlington, Otsego Co., where he labored four years. He then went to the Norwich Church in Oneida Co., where he continued four or five years.

"Owing to the infirmities of age and feeble health, he then removed to this place, where he might finish his earthly course in the embraces of dear and affectionate children.

"He was, however, able to perform important missionary services in several towns in this vicinity. His last sickness was protracted and painful, but borne with fortitude and patience. His aged companion and a numerous family of children survive."

In Landmarks of Niagara Co. (1897), he is mentioned as the first resident pastor of the church at Cambria, near Lockport, in 1827. He was a Revolutionary soldier, and on May 25, 1909, a committee of the Buffalo Chapter, D. A. R., came to Lockport and marked his grave in the cemetery.

65 REV. DAVID⁵ PARSONS (Rev. David,⁴ Rev. David,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), b. at Amherst, Jan. 28, 1749; graduated from Harvard College, 1771. He m. Harriet, dau. of Ezekiel and Prudence (Stoddard) Williams, b. at Weathersfield, Conn., June 26, 1764. She d. at Amherst, June 5, 1850. She was a sister of Judge Thomas Scott Williams, of Hartford, Conn. He studied theology under his father. After preaching at several places, he succeeded his father as pastor of the church at Amherst, Oct., 1782. His settlement met with much opposition by many, largely because he was a Tory, as his father had been before him. It argues well for his ability and that of his father, and for his other engaging qualities, that this very grave and serious offense was to some extent overlooked by many who had experienced the hardships of battle and camp.

He was one of the founders of Amherst College, giving the land upon which it was located. He d. at Weathersfield, Ct., May 18, 1823. The following is from an address by Rev. Charles H. Williams, at the 150th anniversary of the Amherst church.

"Dr. Parsons had the advantage of an uncommonly fine person, of about medium height, and rather inclined to corpulency; his features regular, eyes raven black, and his face beaming with intelligence and good nature.

"He possessed social qualities of a high order. His great fluency of utterance, his fine flow of social feeling, his extensive knowledge of men and things, and his inexhaustible fund of anecdote, seemed to mark him as a leader in almost any conversation that might be introduced. His preaching was sensible and instructive, and gave you the impression that there was a great deal of reserve power. He read his sermons closely, and had little or no action in the pulpit, though he was far from tame or dull in his delivery. He had not only the keenest sense of the ridiculous, but he indulged himself in this way without much restraint."

The Colonial Tavern

Daniel⁸ Parsons, son of Esquire Joseph² Parsons, is mentioned as an inn-keeper at Springfield. Clarke, in his ANTIQUITIES of NORTHAMPTON, refers to the fact in a tone of apology, or explanation, in the following language; as though the occupation at the time he wrote might not be regarded as quite up to the level of the family's respectability.

"Daniel Parsons, who located in Springfield as an inn-keeper probably ranked in public estimation amongst the choicest characters in the community. Gentlemen, in the technical sense of the word, then had, and only such received licenses to be inn-keepers. As thus licensed may be cited such names as Cornet Joseph Parsons, Captain Henry Dwight, and the distinguished Col. Partridge. Daniel Parsons, therefore, stood as to high moral worth, probably second to none of his six brothers."

Whether this was the same tavern and location which afterwards became more famous as "Parson's Tavern," under the management of his grandson, Zenas⁵ Parsons, we cannot say, but presume it was. It is referred to at length in the histories of Wilbraham, Springfield and Hampden County. On page 341, History of Springfield, by Green, is the following:

"Of the taverns of that period the old stand of Zenas Parsons is the best known. The elm in the South east corner of the present court square stood in front of this tavern, there being just room for the 'Stage Wagon' between it and the Hotel Veranda. Extensive barns and sheds in the rear were there, and here auctions were frequently held. On training days, young men often tried their powers of wrestling. Over the shed was a long dance hall, much used by young people. It is generally believed that George Washington put up at this tavern either when he passed through to take command at Cambridge, or when he visited the Armory after the war."

On page 343, the author continues as follows:

"We can hardly realize the full place which the tavern occupied in those days when the famous Zenas Parsons held sway. The English were naturally a tavern haunting people. The tap room was comfortable, informal, and conducive to the interchange of fact and opinion, three qualifications that strongly appealed to the English before the advent of the new and tremendous agency of journalism. Parsons retired with the Century in which he was born, but many an anecdote remains of those days of flip-irons, and today."

In Trumbull's History of Northampton, Vol. 2, page 346, is an account of the excitement and demonstration in Springfield in 1774, just before the Revolutionary War, growing out of the hostility to England, and he speaks of the people in crowds marching through the streets and parading before Mr. Parsons' house and then to the meeting house and then returning again to Mr. Parsons' house, and in a note at the bottom of the page the author says:

"Mr. Parsons was landlord Parsons famous throughout the Valley who kept the tavern which stood at the southeast corner of the present courthouse square in Springfield. . . . Mr. Parsons was licensed as an inn-keeper in 1773 and was still at his post in 1786."

In the History of Hampden County, by Copeland (1902), at page 42, Vol. 2, speaking of Springfield, the author says:

"One of the notable events of the year 1775, was the arrival in Springfield of General Washington en rout to Boston to take command of the Army encamped about that city. He stopped a time at the old Parsons Tavern, which was then located in Elm Street, and his presence in the town was the occasion of much enthusiasm on the part of the loyal citizens. On his departure a troop of horsemen escorted the party as far as Brookfield."

In a diary of Washington appears the following:

"Col. Worthington, Adjutant General of the State of Mass., General Shepard, Mr. Lyman and many other gentlemen sat an hour or two with me in the evening at Parsons Tavern where I lodged, and which is a good house."

78 CAPT. CHARLES⁵ PARSONS (Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Aaron⁴ and Mercy (Atkinson) Parsons, m. Jan. 30, 1785, Lucy Baldwin, b. June 30, 1753, and d. Oct. 8, 1818.

At the early part of the Revolutionary War he enlisted as Orderly Sergeant in the 8th N. Y. Regt., Col. Van Schaiek. He was promoted Lieutenant, Nov. 21, 1776, and Captain, 1778; commanded two years at Ticonderoga and was mustered out in 1782. He was at Valley Forge; was wounded at Monmouth and was present at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown; was a member of the Society of the Cincinnati.

After the War he engaged in agricultural and commercial pursuits at Williamstown, Mass.

79 ELIJAH⁵ PARSONS (Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Aaron⁴ and Mercy (Atkinson) Parsons, b. Apr. 17, 1744, was a farmer residing at Wilbraham and Five Mile Pond. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary War, serving when called from 1775. In Stebbins' History of Wilbraham, p. 109, is the following statement:

"In the muster roll of the Minit Co. that came from Wilbraham under command of Capt. Paul Langdon it is recorded that Elijah Parsons, of Wilbraham, private, marched April 20, 1775; discharged May 2d same year." This was just after the battle of Lexington.

On page 232, of the same history, the name of Elijah Parsons appears, among about 125 others, signers to the following non-consumption pledge of British goods, in 1774.

"There being no other alternative between the horrors of slavery, or the carnage and desolation of a Civil war, but a suspension of all commercial intercourse with the Island of Great Britain, we do solemnly covenant and engage with each other First, that from henceforth we will suspend all commercial intercourse with the Island of Great Britain. . . . Second, that we will not buy, purchase or consume in any manner whatever, any goods, wares or merchandise, which shall arrive in America from Great Britain . . . and that we will break off all trade, commerce and dealings whatsoever with all persons who preferring their own private interests to the salvation of their now perishing country, shall still continue to import goods from Great Britain or shall purchase from those who do import, and Third, we agree to purchase no article of merchandise of any who do not sign this pledge."

The above is an early and severe instance of the boycott.

In the same history, on p. 238, under the head of Bennington Alarm, is this record: "Capt. James Shaws Co. detached from the regiment whereof Charles Pynchon, Esq., is Colonel was ordered to join Gen. Gates army for 30 days unless sooner discharged. Each man entered Sept. 24, discharged Oct. 18, miles traveled 140. The name of Elijah Parsons appears as a private." This was the Burgoyne campaign, ending in the battle of Saratoga.

An official statement of this service also appears in "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the Commonwealth," compiled by the Secretary of the Commonwealth in accordance with Chapter 100, Enactments, 1891.

He was also a representative to the General Court at Boston in 1786. (Munsel's Am. Enc., Vol. 4, p. 201.)

His brother, Eli, was conspicuous as a leader in Shay's Rebellion, but we have no record that Elijah sympathized to the extent of armed rebellion. This reference is, however, made in said History of Wilbraham.

"In the exciting time of Shay's Rebellion convention after convention assembled to devise measures of relief, and in Nov., 1786, Elijah Parsons was chosen to represent the town of Wilbraham at a convention to be held at Hadley, the next day."

He married (1) Eunice Cadwell, at Wilbraham, Oct. 26, 1769, born 1741, died at Wilbraham Aug. 16, 1784; married (2) Eunice Jennings, Apr. 30, 1785, who died May 6, 1814.

80 LIEUT. ELI⁵ PARSONS (Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Aaron⁴ Parsons, b. Jan. 29, 1748, at or near Springfield, Mass.; died at Oswego, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1830. He married June 5, 1777, Persis, born 1755, daughter of Daniel and Joanna (Field) Graves, of Sunderland, Mass., who were married Jan. 30, 1753.

The Graves family are descended from Thomas Graves, born in England before 1585, who came to New England prior to 1645, with his wife, Sarah, and five children, to-wit: Isaac, John, Samuel, Nathaniel, and Elizabeth, the youngest being 16 years old. He settled first at Hartford, Conn., and afterwards removed to Hatfield, Mass. The ancestral line is Thomas,¹ John,² Daniel,³ Daniel,⁴ Daniel,⁵ Persis.⁶

Eli Parsons was a soldier in the Revolutionary War from 1776 to 1780. The following record appears in "Massachusetts Soldiers and Sailors in the War of the Revolution."

"Parsons, Eli, Lieut., Col. John Crain's (artillery) Continental Army pay accounts for services from Mar. 1, 1777, to May 7, 1779, reported resigned May 7, 1779. Also 1st Lieut. Capt. Thomas Seward's Co., Col. Crain's Regt., muster rolls, for Sept. and Oct., 1777—reported wounded Oct. 4th, 1777. Also same Co. and Regt. muster rolls for May, 1778, dated Camp Valley Forge, Commissioned Feb. 1, 1777, return of officers, for clothing, Certified at Boston, Sept. 25, 1778."

Also in "Register of Officers in Continental Army, by L. B. Hartman, Washington, D. C., 1893."

"Parsons, Eli (N. Y.), 2d Lieut., 3d N. Y., Feb. 1st to Nov., 1776, 2d Lieut., 3d Continental Artillery, Jan. 1, 1777, wounded at Germantown 4th Oct., 1777, resigned 5th May, 1779. Served subsequently as Commissary of Issues, June, 1779, to May, 1780. Died 25 Sept., 1830."

After the war, and in 1786-87, we find him taking an active part in Shay's Rebellion, during which time he probably resided in Western Massachusetts, as, in Green's History of Springfield, it is stated that the company he commanded in that Rebellion came from Berkshire. About the same time his brother, Capt. Charles⁵ Parsons, was living at or near Williamstown, Mass.

In the first U. S. census of householders, taken in 1790, he is mentioned as of Canajoharie, N. Y., but we know that for several years prior to 1795 he resided at Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y., and remained there until his removal to Oswego, N. Y. At Cherry Valley he was Surveyor, Justice of the Peace, and one of the founders of the Cherry Valley Academy in 1795, whose first Principal was Eliphalet Nott, who later, and for more than sixty years, was the President of Union College at Schenectady, N. Y. We cannot say just when he removed to Oswego, but it was several years prior to 1812.

In "Landmarks of Oswego Co., N. Y., by Churchill, 1895," is this reference to him:

"The Col. E. Parsons mentioned by Mr. Townsend was Col. Eli Parsons, who gained his military title in 'Shay's Rebellion,' in which he was second in command.

"He also had served as Capt. in the Revolutionary War. Being excluded from the first amnesty of participants in the Rebellion he fled to Canada, but after the final amnesty settled in Oswego, where he became popular chiefly on account of his jovial, social nature.

"He succeeded Peter Sharp in keeping the early tavern before mentioned. His son, Eli, was lost in the lake in the War of 1812, while attempting to carry a load of cannon balls in an open boat from Oswego to Sacket's Harbor."

Shays' Rebellion

I remember hearing my grandfather, in my boyhood, give some account of the above incident, in Massachusetts history, which occurred in 1786-7. At that time he was at the impressionable age of eleven years and what he saw and heard in those exciting times evidently impressed him more than what he had heard of the REVOLUTIONARY WAR, which took place during the days of his infancy.

His father, Elijah^s Parsons, took a prominent part in the meetings and conventions which preceded the rebellion, and his uncle, Eli^s Parsons, was an active participator therein. I think, therefore, that some account of it will not be out of place here. It has been mentioned in all histories of those times, and in the second Vol. of Trumbull's History of Northampton, about 30 pages are given to the subject and about the same number in Green's History of Springfield. In the last named book, on page 301, will be found an apparently fair statement of the causes which led up to it, and is as follows:

"The return of peace brought grave responsibilities upon the shoulders of the American leaders. The continental soldiers were poor and the money was largely in the hands of civilians. The men who, by their valor, put property in New England beyond the reach of England found themselves burdened with personal obligations, and the fiercest conflict was precipitated between debtors who had borne arms and creditors who had not. This is the general statement, but there were other complications; a worthless paper medium, a shambling and ill-defined union of the states, a jealousy of military power, and wild visions of what the new American democracy could do, combined to still further torture, the COMMONWEALTH. If 1776 was the time which tried men's souls 1786 was the time which tried the poor man's soul, for fully one-half of the citizens in the state were in debt. The multiplication of judgments and the excursions of sheriffs in search of property to levi upon, embittered the people against the courts of law."

The trouble had been brewing for years and grew with intensity as time passed. There was no stay-law to relieve the debtor class by a postponement of the right to prosecute claims, a remedy which has since, on occasion, been adopted by some of the states, and the process of procuring judgment, issuing execution, and selling out the debtor went merrily on. Meetings to protest were held and agitators argued that in escaping from the tyrannies of England they found themselves in the clutches of their merciless countrymen. While the whole state was affected, the center of the agitation was in the Connecticut Valley, around Springfield and Northampton. Between 1783, when the British soldiers departed, and 1787, when the Philadelphia Convention drafted the Constitution, the county, socially and politically, was in a state of chaos. Daniel Snays, of Pelham, Mass., whose activity gave a name to the rebellion, had been a soldier of some distinction, had risen to the rank of Captain and had fought at Bunker Hill, Stony Point, and Saratoga. He had suffered as a judgment debtor, was of a reckless character, and soon became a leader at the various meetings. The sale of the bedding under a sick woman gave him a text for tavern harangues. At the Feb., 1787, term of the court of Common Pleas, held at Northampton, no less than 330 causes, mainly the result of poverty of the debtors were called up, and judgment taken or action deferred. Class feeling was intense, and lawyers were the special object of contempt, and elections were fought out on this issue. Soon argument and harangue were succeeded by riotous demonstrations, interfering with the courts and the orderly conduct of business. Then followed the calling out of the militia and the appearance in arms of the insurgents. Gen. Shepard commanded the state troops, and Shays, Luke Day, Adam Wheeler, and Eli^s Parsons were the leaders of the insurgents.

Local self-government was by town meetings, at which the assembled citizens, by popular vote, elected officers and passed upon measures. On page 321, of Green's History of Springfield, appears the following statement:

"To show how some of the towns felt the strain, it may be said that the remote town of Rowe, Dec. 4, 1786, being repeatedly requested to join in the dispute between the court and those called THE REGULATING PARTY; but not being able to get at the merits of the controversy recommended that as many as can conveniently march, should repair to Springfield, and after hearing particulars, join that party as shall judge to be in the right of the cause, they acting entirely for themselves in the matter."

From the History of Palmer, by Temple, we quote the following:

"A chief means relied on to influence public opinion, and secure concert of action, was the holding of conventions, composed of delegates chosen by the towns of a smaller circuit, or of the whole county.

"These conventions met at Deerfield, Hatfield and Hadley in the Connecticut Valley and at Worcester.

"Their spirit and object may be inferred by the wording of the call of one of them.

" 'To take into consideration the deplorable situation the people of this county, and the commonwealth are in, and the more deplorable situation they are soon like to be in, by reason of the great scarcity of a circulating medium.' . . .

"In the meantime active measures of resistance to the state authorities were in progress. Having exhausted the influence of conventions, the more daring of the malcontents resorted to the force of armed demonstrations. Among the prominent leaders were Capt. Francis Stone, of North Brookfield, who really furnished the brains of the movement, Col. Seth Murray, of Hatfield, Maj. Luke Day, of West Springfield, Capt. Daniel Shays, of Pelham, Capt. Eli Parsons, of Berkshire. These men had all served with credit in the War of the Revolution and had great influence over the common people. A body of the insurgents had prevented the holding of the Court of Common Pleas at Great Barrington in August. In September the Supreme Judicial Court at Springfield was virtually prevented from sitting. The December sessions of the Courts at Worcester were broken up by the presence of about 1,000 armed men, under Capt. Shays."

The final collision occurred in protecting the arsenal and a session of court to be held at Springfield in or about Feb., 1787. The insurgents had gathered from various quarters under the different leaders and seemed to concentrate near the town of Palmer to the northeast of Springfield, and were advancing toward the town. In his history, on page 325, Green says:

"Shepard sent several messages of warning to Shays not to advance but received only insolence and defiance for his pains.

At a hundred yards a howitzer was discharged each side of the advancing forces, and a few moments later a shot at short range was levelled directly at the column. Ezekial Root and Ariel Webster of Gill, and John Spicer of Lyden, were killed; and John Hunter of Shelburn mortally wounded. A scene of ridiculous confusion followed. Not a return shot was fired at the militia and about 1,200 very much frightened men raced for their dear lives toward Ludlow."

And in the History of Hampden County, by Copeland (1902), Vol. 2, p. 47:

"It was an exciting period in Springfield when Daniel Shays' hosts overturned the courts and openly insulted the organized militia, but when their little successes prompted an attack on the Federal Arsenal on the hill, one or two discharges of small cannon by General Shepard's soldiers dispersed the unruly horde and ended the embryo internecine war."

This ended the rebellion. The insurgents scattered to their homes and their leaders fled. Gov. Bowdoin, in Feb., offered 150 pounds reward for the arrest of Shays and 100 pounds each, for the arrest of Wheeler, Day, and Parsons. After the excitement had quieted down, general amnesty was granted by the governor.

1845, and in 1848 he removed to Buffalo. He subsequently traveled through the South and West for the benefit of his health, and was greatly impressed by the rapid growth of the great Middle West. Although not himself liberally educated, in its widest sense, he was always alive to the importance of moral and intellectual training to the youth of the country, as the proper preparation for citizenship, and although not a wealthy man, as fortunes are now estimated, he determined to devote a goodly share of his fortune to the founding of an institution of learning in the West, and by his will, gave directions to this end to his sons, his executors. They, after his death, following these instructions, had incorporated, founded and endowed, the institution at Fairfield, Iowa, known as Parsons College, to be under the general supervision of the Presbyterian church, of which for many years he had been a member and an elder. He was by birth, education, and training a Puritan, but his religion was broad and Catholicistic. He was always a liberal contributor to all religious and benevolent objects, and in all these matters he was encouraged and aided by his pious and affectionate wife. The college as founded was subsequently greatly aided by the liberal gifts of his sons and is at this time (1911) presided over by his grandson, Rev. Willis E. Parsons, D. D.

161 ELIJAH⁶ PARSONS (Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Elijah,⁵ removed from Wilbraham, Mass., to Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., in his twentieth year. At that time his uncle, Eli,⁵ resided at Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y., about six miles from where Elijah⁶ subsequently resided in Sharon. He had served an apprenticeship as carpenter and joiner in Wilbraham and immediately commenced his work as architect, carpenter and builder, which he continued in connection with farming for about fifty years thereafter. In 1795, his uncle, Eli, with fourteen others, had, by petition, secured a charter from the Board of Regents, of the State of N. Y., for the Cherry Valley Academy, and had secured the services of Eliphalet Nott as the first Principal of the Academy, and in 1796 Elijah was a pupil of Dr. Nott, who afterwards was the President of Union College for more than sixty years. Elijah Parsons was a man of more than ordinary intelligence and education for his time, and remarkably well informed as to current events, and the history of the country. In his work he built many of the churches and better class residences in his and the adjoining towns. In 1812 he was commissioned by the Governor of the State, a Captain in the County Militia (113th Regt., Calvin Rich, Lieut. Col.) and was generally known as Capt. Parsons. For about twenty of the last years of his life failing sight deprived him of the pleasure of reading, and he had to rely upon the loving ministrations of his children and grandchildren. I well remember the interest he took in my reading to him Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" soon after its publication. The following remark occurs in an obituary published soon after his death. "He was a native of Wilbraham, Mass., and was educated in the strict morality of the Puritans." This Puritanism was characteristic of his entire life, and while showing none of the traditional gloomy austerity of the Puritan, he never abandoned his plain simplicity. Genial in disposition, fond of hearing and relating good stories and anecdotes, with which his memory was richly stored from his extensive reading, he was a charming companion with all, but particularly with children. For the last twenty-five years of his life he was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dying in his 89th year, he retained his vigor of mind and body almost to the end of his days. His picture herein was taken at about his 85th year.

162 ELISHA⁶ PARSONS (Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Elijah⁵ and Eunice (Cadwell) Parsons, was born at Wilbraham, Mass., Mar. 31, 1782. About 1800 he joined his brother, Elijah,⁶ at Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., and Jan. 14, 1806, married (1) Frances Higgins, of Mapletown, Montgomery Co., N. Y. Later he removed to Jefferson Co., N. Y., where his wife died Oct. 22, 1813. In the winter of 1812-13 their house burned in the night and the family barely escaped with their lives, the parents barefooted and in night clothes, carrying the two children three miles to the nearest dwelling. The exposure caused the death of the mother, a few months later.

He married (2) June, 1814, in Jefferson Co., N. Y., Hannah, daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Bassett) Taggert. Joseph was the youngest son of Henry and Mary (Baker) Taggert, his second wife. Their marriage was Feb. 20, 1742, in Trinity Church, Newport, R. I., as recorded in Vol. 10, p. 470, of the Vital Records of R. I. In the R. I. Colonial Records, Vol. 5, p. 19, is recorded that Henry Taggart (with others) were admitted freemen by the General Court May 5, 1741.

This Henry Taggart was an English sea captain, who came from the Isle of Man. His first wife was a widow Sherman, by whom he had seven children, and they settled in Newport, R. I.

Elisha⁶ Parsons and family removed to Fayette Town, Vigo Co., Ind., prior to 1818, as the records of that County show that he served as juror that year. In early life he learned the trade of tanner and currier and followed that business, together with farming, in New York and Indiana.

He died in Vigo Co., Ind., Aug. 8, 1837, and his wife, Hannah, died at Kankakee, Ill., Apr. 11, 1869, aged 81.

Bond, D. D., LL. D., his associate, wrote of Dr. Horace Hayden in 1844:

"He was remarkable from his childhood. He learned to read as soon as he could talk and at once contracted that fondness for books which was so remarkable in all his subsequent life."

In 1799 he visited for professional services, Dr. Greenwood, of N. Y. City, then the only regular dentist in the United States, and was so pleased and interested that he began the study of dentistry, and in 1802 began its practice in Baltimore.

He also studied medicine in the University of Maryland. He gave much attention as a student and investigator of geology, and in 1821 published a volume of "Geological Essays," which was highly commended by Prof. Benjamin Selliman of Yale College. He also wrote for publications on many other scientific subjects. In 1840 he was associated with Dr. Chapin Harris in founding the "Baltimore College of Dental Surgeons," the first in the United States, and he was the first President of this college, and professor of pathology until his death.

He was also a member of many scientific societies. He had six children, four of whom reached maturity, as follows:

Oct. 7, 1828, near Cherry Valley, N. Y., dau. of Rev. Charles and Tryphena (Isham) Wadsworth, of Richfield Springs, N. Y. She d. Aug. 2, 1856. He m. (2) Sept. 14, 1858, at Auburn, N. Y., Harriet Maria Pease, of Auburn, dau. of Lorenzo and Lucinda (Leonard) Pease. She was b. in Scala, Island of Cyprus, and d. Aug. 19, 1905, at Mt. Morris, N. Y. Her father, Lorenzo Pease, was b. in Hinsdale, Mass., 1809, and moved to Auburn in 1811. He graduated from Hamilton College and Auburn Theological Seminary.

In 1834, her parents sailed as missionaries of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions to the Greeks in Cypress, where he d. five years later. He was buried in the churchyard at St. Lazarus, Larnaca, with every mark of respect from priests and dignitaries and general lamentation. Mrs. Pease returned to Auburn to educate her two daughters.

Rev. Dr. Parsons graduated from Hamilton College, N. Y., 1849; Auburn Theological Seminary, 1854. He was minister of the Presbyterian Church at Mt. Morris, N. Y., from 1858 until his death, May 30, 1901. After his father's death, he was appointed Trustee of Auburn Theological Seminary to fill the vacancy, and remained a trustee until his death, and from 1893 was President of the Board. For eighty years the name of Levi Parsons was on the catalogue of the Seminary as a trustee. From the founding of the Rochester Presbytery he was its Stated Clerk until his death, a term of thirty years. In 1874, his Alma Mater conferred the degree of Doctor of Divinity. In 1877, he visited Scotland as delegate to the first Pan-Presbyterian Council held at Edinburgh. He was Moderator of the Synod of New York and New England, at Albany, 1892.

He seemed to have those qualities of heart and mind which, in their influence, survive the grave, and leave a lasting impress on the community. He exerted an unconscious power for good in Western N. Y. during his long ministry.

His death called forth many tributes of respect, esteem, and affection, not only in the funeral addresses, but from the wide circle of friends and the various organizations with which he had been connected.

The Mount Morris Union said:

"To us who knew him, who have watched his every day life for all these years, and who loved him for his manhood, his tenderness, his Christian graces and his grand stability, the honors accorded him by his church and college are but a feeble expression of the largeness of the man. In our hearts he occupies the inner sanctuary, where we cherish all that is best and highest in our experiences. At our marriages, our christenings, our funerals, in society, in business, in civic life, there has been this good man; his cheerful, hopeful heart has joined with us in all our joys, his pure spirit and unflinching trust in God's supremacy and wisdom has been our stay in affliction, his clear, cool, deliberate judgment has been our guide in business and civic life."

Prof. Edward W. Miller, of Auburn Theological Seminary, who took part in the funeral services, spoke, in part, of him as follows:

"Those who have just spoken have referred to our departed brother in his relationships as a friend, as a pastor and as a fellow Presbyterian. * * * It is because of a service of long and loving and self-sacrificing devotion to Auburn Seminary, rendered by this man of God, now gone to his reward, that I am given the privilege of offering on behalf of that institution, our tribute of grateful appreciation.

"Dr. Parsons's relations to Auburn Seminary were peculiarly intimate. They were in a sense a heritage. As far back as 1830, when the Seminary was in its infancy, his father became President of the Board of Trustees. This responsible position he held until his death, in 1864.

"The son, whose memory we today honor, entered the Seminary as a student in 1851, was graduated in 1854, and ten years later, at the death of his father, was elected Trustee as his successor. In that capacity he served the Seminary for thirty-seven years, or until his death. So that the combined service of father and son covers the long period of eighty years, the entire life of the Seminary. Dr. Parsons, Jr., was in 1893 elected President of the Board of Trustees, which position, like his father, he held until his death."

The following biography is condensed in part from a tribute by Joseph L. Daniel, of Olivet College, Mich., to the memory of Philo Parsons.

270 PHILO⁷ PARSONS (Lewis B.,⁶ Capt. Charles,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), eldest son of Lewis B.⁶ and Lucina (Hoar) Parsons, b. at Scipio, N. Y., Feb. 6, 1817; d. at Winchenden, Mass., Jan. 23, 1896; m. June 27, 1843, at Moscow, N. Y., Ann Eliza Barnum, b. Sept. 14, 1822, and d. at Detroit, Mich., Apr. 25, 1893. He was in business with his father at Perry, N. Y., under the firm name of L. B. Parsons and Son. In 1844 he removed to Detroit in the grocery business in the firm of Parsons and James, and a few years later he established a private bank. In 1861 he was the leader in organizing the First National Bank of Detroit, and was its first President, and for many years one of its directors. He was active in promoting the commercial prosperity of Detroit; was President of its Board of Trade, and for many years represented the city in the National Board of Trade and was frequently its Vice-President. He was always active in the municipal affairs of Detroit, and was for a time a member of its Council, and the State appointed him Commissioner to the Yorktown Centennial. He never sought political offices or honors, and frequently declined them when they merely appealed to his personal ambition. He was an active member, and for a time President of the State Agricultural Society of Michigan. He was an enthusiast in horticulture and fruit culture, in which he found his relaxation and pleasure, his own garden being one of the finest in Detroit. He was a royal entertainer, and never happier than when sharing the hospitality of his elegant home with his friends.

He also took special delight in aiding young men who were preparing for the ministry.

He bought the Ram Library in Heidelberg and donated it to the Michigan State University.

He early became interested in Olivet College, Mich., and for thirty-six years was one of its trustees.

He built his name into its history and college walls, and Parsons Hall and Parsons Professorship are to his honor. Not only his munificent gifts, but his wise counsels and his life-long devotion to the work at Olivet are gratefully remembered.

The following is condensed from the sketch of the life of Gen. L. B. Parsons in the Memorial Volume, published after his death.

PHILO PARSONS.

271 GENERAL LEWIS B.⁷ PARSONS (Lewis B.⁶ Capt. Charles,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), the second son of Lewis B.⁶ and Lucina (Hoar) Parsons, b. Apr. 5, 1818, in Genesee Co., N. Y.; d. Mar. 16, 1907, at Flora, Ill. His early life was spent in Homer, N. Y., but at the age of ten his father removed to St. Lawrence Co., N. Y. Eager for an education he made the best of the limited opportunities afforded and at sixteen taught a country school. He continued his studies and at eighteen entered Yale College. In the winter of his senior year he taught a Classical School in Western N. Y., and among his scholars was Thomas Cooley, afterwards Judge Cooley, of Michigan, the great authority on Constitutional law, who became a life-long friend. For two years after graduation, he taught in a Classical School in Mississippi, where his personal observations on the evils of slavery made a lasting impression, although, for the time, he enjoyed the delightful hospitalities of the Southern plantations. In 1842 he entered the law school at Cambridge, Mass., where he came under the inspiring instructions of Judge Story, Judge Greenleaf, and Theophilus Parsons. Leaving Cambridge in 1844, after some travel, he settled at Alton, Ill., where he formed a partnership with Mr. Strong, brother of Justice Strong of the U. S. Supreme Court, and later with Judge Henry W. Billings, which continued until he removed to St. Louis in 1854, where he continued the practice of his profession, and later at Cincinnati as Attorney for the Ohio and Mississippi R. R. Co. He was for many years connected with this company, afterwards known as the Baltimore and Ohio Southern, as Treasurer, Director, and President. During this time Capt. (later Genl.) George B. McLellan was Vice-President. He returned to St. Louis in the spring of 1861, when the Southern element was in control, and planning to turn the State over to the Confederacy. This was prevented by the prompt action of Genl. Lyon in the capture of Camp Jackson, May 10, 1861, where Mr. Parsons acted as Vol. Aide to Col. (later Genl.) Frank P. Blair.

Realizing the certainty of war, although past the age of military service, he offered his services to Genl. McLellan, who asked him to come to Washington and placed him on his staff with the rank of Captain. Because of his business experience he was soon transferred to the West and assigned to duty under Genl. Robert Allen, Chief Quartermaster at St. Louis.

From this time his real work in connection with the Civil War began, which in importance and successful achievement may be regarded as second to none of those conspicuous in the conduct of the war.

On Dec. 9, 1861, he received this order from Genl. Allen:

"You will take charge of all the transportation pertaining to the Dept. of the Mississippi by river and railroad and discharge all employes not required to facilitate this particular service." This department included the Mississippi and its tributaries extending from the Yellow Stone to Pittsburg, and to New Orleans, the lower Mississippi coming under control as the Confederates were driven back. This vast work of transportation "behind the scenes" in the great drama of the war was, at the time, but little known or considered by the public.

But by the leaders in that struggle, the Generals in the field, planning for battles, when delay in any particular might mean defeat and disaster, the importance of the proper management of the transportation department was fully understood; and it was most fortunate that the officer then put in charge was a man with remarkable talent for organization, of great executive ability and the highest integrity, united to the most intense loyalty to his country and devotion to duty in her service.

The army regulations at that time were intended for an army of 15,000 men in time of peace, and were totally inadequate for the great numbers suddenly brought into service, who must be transported over long distances and who required large quantities of supplies of every kind, and forwarded with the utmost promptness. A few simple, concise regulations and forms fixing responsibility were prepared by Capt. Parsons, which proved so successful in bringing about system and order, and were so satisfactory to the railroads, that they were adopted throughout the West as the basis of government transportation during the war, and subsequently with other regulations added by Genl. Parsons later, became the basis of General Rules for Army Transportation still in use.

GENERAL LEWIS B. PARSONS.

But the river transportation presented a more difficult problem. A large majority of both steamboat owners and employees on the Mississippi and Missouri rivers were sympathizers with the Confederacy, and objected to any change.

The antagonism went so far as a protest to the Secretary of War. Stanton referred the matter to Genl. Meigs, and he sent it to Capt. Parsons for explanation. The answer was so satisfactory that Genl. Meigs, head of the Quartermaster Dept., wrote him: "I am glad to recognize the fidelity with which you have performed your duty, for the Dept. and to the country."

In April, 1862, he was promoted to the rank of Colonel and assigned as Aide on the staff of Genl. Halleck, then in command at St. Louis. Space will not permit of following his work through the entire war. It is sufficient to say that his service in the West was so approved that in Aug., 1864, he was given charge of all rail and river transportation of the Armies of the U. S. and ordered to Washington, where he was stationed during the remainder of the war.

In Jan., 1865, Genl. Grant desired Genl. Scofield's army of 25,000 men brought from Mississippi to aid in the movements around Richmond, but hesitated to order it, thinking it would be impracticable, at that season of the year to safely bring so large a body of men over mountains, and in sufficient time to answer his purpose, forty to sixty days being the shortest time thought possible. Col. Parsons said he thought it could be done in thirty days. But the army, with all its artillery and over one thousand animals, was transported a distance of nearly 1,400 miles during the severest cold of the winter, partly by river and partly by rail, within an average time of eleven days or less than seventeen days from the embarkation of the first troops until the arrival of the last in Washington, and without the loss of property or a single life. It was this movement which called from Secretary Stanton the remark that "It was without a parallel in the history of Armies," and which elicited highest praise from English, French, and German writers; while as recently as during the Spanish War a newspaper editorial stated that "The American Civil War still holds the record for transporting a large body of troops over a long distance in the shortest time."

His promotion to the rank of Brigadier-General did not come until near the end of the war, and the circumstances are deserving of notice. There had been numerous promotions in his Department from the Regular Army, but few from the volunteer service, and the reason was given at a Cabinet meeting, held about this time, an account of which was given Col. Parsons as follows:

"Recently when the subject of the promotion of a Quartermaster to the rank of Brig.-Genl. was being discussed at a Cabinet meeting the President mentioned Parsons. Some urged that the promotion should be given to an officer of the Regular Army—that such officers were regularly educated and trained up to the service for that sort of position and were better fitted by such special training. Mr. Lincoln said, 'That may all be well as to your stall-fed fellows, but Col. Parsons is about the best grass-fed Quartermaster we have got. I think he should have the promotion now.'"

The opinion of President Lincoln thus expressed in his homely, characteristic manner, was soon put into effect by the following order.

"Executive Mansion,

"Washington, D. C., Mar. 17, 1865.

"Hon. Secretary of War,

"Dear Sir:—I have long thought Col. Lewis B. Parsons ought to be promoted and intended it should have been sooner done. His long service and the uniform testimony to the ability with which he has discharged his very responsible and extended duties, render it but just and proper his services should be acknowledged, and more especially so, since his great success in executing your orders for the recent movement of troops from the West.

"You will, therefore, at once promote Colonel Parsons to the rank of Brigadier-General, if there is a vacancy which can be given to the Quartermaster's Department, and if not, you will so promote him when the first vacancy occurs. Yours truly,

"A. LINCOLN."

The promotion came soon after. An extract is herewith given from an editorial in the N. Y. Times of July 31, 1865, written by the late Henry J. Raymond, whom Genl. Parsons did not know, but who was present at the interview between him and Secretary Stanton after the movement of Genl. Scofield's Army, and who probably reflected the sentiments of the Secretary.

"No officer of the United States Army could speak with more correct knowledge than Genl. Parsons of the numbers and efficiency of the armies of the Union, for no one, perhaps, had more experience than he in their organization, subsistence and handling.

* * * We venture the assertion that if Secretary Stanton were called on to name the officer, who more than any other, had distinguished himself in the task of wielding the vast machinery of the Union Armies during all the stages of the conflict in response to the plans and requirements of our Generals, he would, with little hesitation, designate General Lewis B. Parsons. * * *

It is to his matchless combinations that must be attributed much of the efficiency and success that almost invariably marked every military movement in the West. When the climax of General Grant's Western renown was reached in the battles before Chattanooga, and he was transferred to the command of all the armies, with headquarters at Washington, he lost no time in bringing General (then Colonel) Parsons to Washington to direct from that center, the machinery of which he had become so completely the master. When every department of the public service during the war comes to have its true place in history, there will be few with a more brilliant and enduring reputation than General Lewis B. Parsons."

To this may be added the tribute of General Grant in a farewell letter to General Parsons as he was leaving the service. He says:

"Headquarters, Armies of the United States,

"Dear General: "Washington, D. C., May 20, 1865.

"I have long contemplated writing you and expressing my satisfaction with the manner in which you have discharged the very responsible and difficult duties of Superintendent of the river and railroad transportation for the armies both in the West and East.

"The position is second in importance to no other connected with the military service, and to have been appointed to it at the beginning of a war of the magnitude and duration of this one, and holding it to its close, providing transportation for whole armies, with all that appertains to them for thousands of miles, adjusting accounts involving millions of money, and doing justice to all, never delaying for a moment any military operations, dependent upon you, meriting and receiving the commendation of your superior officers, and the recognition of the Government for integrity of character and for the able and efficient manner in which you have filled it, evidences an honesty of purpose, knowledge of men, business intelligence, and executive ability of the highest order, and of which any man ought to be justly proud. Wishing you a speedy return of health and duty, I remain,

"Yours truly,

"U. S. GRANT, Lt.-Gen."

On his retirement from the Army he was given the rank of Brevet Major-General.

After the war his health was found to be seriously impaired, and his physicians ordered entire rest and he went abroad and traveled for two years, returning in 1869. He took up his residence in St. Louis and again became active in business as director in various railroads, and for three years was President of a bank. He was at times active in politics in the Democratic party, but was not a seeker for office. Much of his time in later years was given to educational matters, particularly in connection with Parsons College at Fairfield, Iowa, which, in 1875, he and his brothers, Charles and George, had established under the directions of his father's will, and to which he had always been a liberal contributor.

He never lost interest in army matters and was a member of the G. A. R., the Loyal Legion, and the Society of the Army of the Tennessee.

272 COL. CHARLES⁷ PARSONS (Lewis B.,⁶ Capt. Charles,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), the third son of Lewis B.⁶ and Lucina (Hoar) Parsons, b. at Homer, N. Y., Jan. 25, 1824. (From the Encyclopedia History of St. Louis.)

He was educated at the academies at Homer and Gouverneur, N. Y., where his father had resided. After spending several years as clerk in his father's stores, in a bank, and as partner in a commercial house in Buffalo, N. Y., he removed to Keokuk, Iowa, in 1851, where he established and continued for years a successful banking business. During the Civil War, with the rank of Captain, he was placed in charge of Army Rail and River transportation at St. Louis, and, because of his eminent success, was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. Near the close of the war he was made cashier of the State Savings Association, later the State National Bank of St. Louis, of which he was elected President in 1870 and remained its President until his death.

While he amassed a reasonable fortune during his long and active business life, he was a liberal giver, in a Catholic spirit, to charitable, religious, and educational institutions. The high esteem in which he was held in financial circles is shown by the fact that for twenty-two years he was annually elected President of the St. Louis Clearing House. He was for several years President of the American Banking Association, was elected to preside over the World's Congress of Bankers and Financiers at the Chicago Exposition in 1893. In 1892, when, owing to a large defalcation, the St. Louis City finances were in bad condition, he consented, at the urgent request of many prominent citizens reardless of party, to temporarily accept the position of City Treasurer, which place he resigned as soon as the business had been put in proper condition and a new treasurer elected. He has been President and director in many railroads and other public and charitable institutions, and his opinion, and advice, were frequently sought on public and financial questions. He was more than a business man, possessing by nature a refined taste. He had gathered valuable paintings and works of art, both in this country and during his frequent visits in Europe. In 1894-95 he made a trip around the world and wrote and published for private distribution an account of his close and accurate observations of men and affairs.

In politics he was a strong Republican, taking an active part in the councils, and contributing liberally to the success of the party. He was a member of the G. A. R., the Loyal Legion, and the Army of the Tennessee.

He married June 1, 1857, Martha A., daughter of William G. Pettus, first Secretary of State of Missouri. He endowed the Martha Parsons Hospital for children in St. Louis, and endowed professorships in Parsons College. She died at St. Louis Feb. 13, 1889, and he d. Sept. 15, 1905, at Wequetonsing, Mich., his summer home. They had no children.

Oct. 23, 1855, Emily Lycett Barnum, b. Apr. 30, 1830. He was educated in the schools at Alexander, N. Y., and the Academy at Homer, N. Y. About 1853 he began banking with his brother, Charles, at Keokuk, Iowa. After the financial crisis of 1857 he left Keokuk and engaged in the drygoods business in Detroit. In July, 1864, he moved to Watervliet, Mich., and became a member of the firm of Swain, Alney & Co., in the manufacture of lumber. This firm dissolved in 1873, and he formed a partnership with his friend and former partner, forming the firm of Parsons and Baldwin, merchants and bankers, in which business he continued until his death.

"Martin Staley, the father of Aaron Staley, was born in North Carolina in 1773. His ancestors came from Germany, about the year 1750 or earlier. One branch of the Staley family left North Carolina prior to 1800 and went to Virginia and became intermarried with the family of President Tyler, as stated to the writer by John Tyler, Jr.

"The other branch migrated to Butler County, Ohio, some time about 1819-20. In 1828, Aaron Staley came to Tippecanoe County, Indiana, and was followed the next year by John, his next oldest brother, his father, Martin Staley and Merideth, Sophia, Hiram, Jacob, Solomon, and Elizabeth, Aaron's brothers and sisters; six brothers and two sisters.

"Aaron Staley was born near Guilford Court House, N. C., Feb. 5, 1800. He came, as stated, to Indiana, and was married to Katherine Parsons, Apr. 30, 1829. His death was Nov. 4, 1854. They were married in Tippecanoe County, where they lived until the death of Katherine Parsons Staley, his wife, May 15, 1843. Late in 1844 he was married to Rebecca Baker, of Carroll County, where he spent the rest of his life.

"By Aaron Staley's second marriage three sons attained manhood: W. H. Staley, proprietor 'Kokomo News,' dying Feb., 1907; his son, Ed. T. Staley, now proprietor 'Tipton Morning Advocate'; and George W. Staley, starved to death in Andersonville prison. Louis B. Staley, just 20 years younger than E. H. Statement by Henry⁷ Parsons, of Plano, Ill., son of Elijah,⁶ made about 1870, as to his ancestry, and referred to in the Preface.

"Aaron Parsons, farmer, born at Five Mile Pond, near Springfield, had two wives, but the time and place of marriage is not known; had six sons and three daughters. He died 1795, at the place of birth. His first sons' names were Aaron, Reuben, Zenus, Elijah, Eli, and Charles. The names of the daughters were Eunice and Phebe; the name of the other not known. The time and place of birth not known. The residence of Charles was the western part of Mass., and he was a farmer. The residence of Aaron, Zenus, Elijah, and Eli is not known.

"Reuben was a tanner and currier, living in the north part of Conn., where he died. Aaron Parsons (2) had two wives. By his first he had two sons, Moses and Rufus. By his second wife he had six sons. Their names are not known. Zenus lived at Springfield and kept a public house. He had one wife and a son and daughter. Eli lived in Oswego, N. Y., had one wife and three sons and four daughters. The sons names were Eli, Portius and Henry; and the names of the daughters were Lettus. Maria, Sintha and Sophia. Eli was a sutler during the War of 1812, and 1814, and was drowned with six others on account of the boat sinking on the passage to Ogdensburgh, or Sackett's Harbor. Portius followed boating and is probably now dead; had no children. Henry died young. Elijah Parsons had two wives, the first was Eunice Cadwell, and the second Eunice Jennings. He had six children, three sons and three daughters, and the same by his second wife. The first sons were Erastus, Elijah and Elisha. By the second wife the sons were Zenus and Reuben, and one who died in infancy. The daughters by first wife were Silence, Flavy and Pheby. By the second wife, Eunice and Theodocia, the third dying in infancy. Erastus was born in the town of Wilbraham in 1772, and was a farmer. Elijah⁶ Parsons was born in Wilbraham, Mass., April 10, 1776 (he was my father and the source of this information), and emigrated to Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., at the age of twenty, and was married to Mary Best. Erastus and Elisha soon followed to Sharon. Elisha was born about 1780 and married Frances Higgins, whose father lived in Mapletown, Montgomery Co., N. Y. He was a tanner and currier, which he followed for several years, then moved to the West and settled on the Wabash River in Indiana near Terre Haute, where he died, leaving two sons, William and Horace. Erastus also emigrated to the Wabash, where he died soon after, leaving one son and three daughters."

HENRY PARSONS.

In another note, apparently written at another time, he says:

"Uncle Erastus Parsons was older than father. He moved to Indiana with a wife and three children; two girls and one son, and they are all dead (died at Lafayette, Ind.). Aunt was a sister to Jacob Anthony, the father of Christopher Anthony, of Sharon."

And in another note he says:

"Elisha Parsons was the youngest of the three brothers. He married Frances Higgins—her father lived in Mapletown, Montgomery Co., N. Y., and they moved to Black River Country, N. Y. She died leaving two sons, William and Horace. William is Dr. Parsons, whom you have seen. Uncle moved into Indiana near Terre Haute and from there he moved in Edgar Co., Ill., and had a large family of children. Four of the boys' names I know—Elisha, Erastus, John and Ralph. I don't recollect how many girls there were. Over twenty years ago, Elisha and Erastus made me a call and I have forgotten the history of the rest of the family. John was a M. E. preacher."

282 JAMES⁷ PARSONS (Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), b. Nov. 1, 1806, son of Elijah.⁶ was educated in the common schools and Cherry Valley Academy, N. Y. He m. Nov. 3, 1829, Hannah, dau. of Andrew C. and Elizabeth (Cook) Moyer, of Sharon, b. Jan. 15, 1807. Her paternal grandfather, Christopher Moyer, and maternal grandfather, Sevarinus Cook, were both soldiers in the Revolution, each serving, when called, from 1776 to 1782, the first being at the battles of Half Moon and Saratoga, and the second at the battle of Oriskany. (See Moyer and Cook families.) At about the age of twenty-five James Parsons was elected to the office of Justice of the Peace and held the office continuously by re-election for 24 years; was Supervisor of his town and represented his county in the State Legislature in 1848, and was Loan Commissioner of the county for many years. He was a Democrat in politics down to the organization of the Republican party, from which time he was an active Republican to the time of his death. For many years prior to death he was an Elder in the True Reformed Dutch Church of Sharon. As illustrative of the high character held by him in the community, he was appointed executor or administrator of the estates of many persons in his and adjacent towns, as will appear by the records in the office of the Surrogate of Schoharie Co.

I think it may be said without question that no man in his time and community was so universally beloved and respected. Throughout the county he was known as "Esquire Parsons," but within the inner circle of acquaintances it was usually "Esquire James."

The minister of his church preached part of the time in other places and in his absence Mr. Parsons conducted the services, reading a sermon from some very orthodox author.

He was a farmer by occupation, and the old homestead, which was first occupied by his wife's maternal grandfather soon after the Revolution, is now the home of Seth⁸ Parsons, his youngest son, at Sharon Springs, N. Y.

Statement by James Parsons, of Sharon, N. Y., son of Elijah,⁶ made about 1870, as to his ancestry. Referred to in the Preface.

"Aaron⁴ Parsons, my great-grandfather, was born at Five Mile Pond near Springfield, Mass.; at what date cannot ascertain, but he died in the year 1795 at the place of his birth, at an advanced age. Who his father was we cannot ascertain. He was a farmer by occupation; had two wives and of the first wife he had six sons and three daughters. Had no children by his second wife. The names of his sons were Aaron, Reuben, Zenus, Elijah, Eli and Charles. The names of his daughters were Eunice, Phebe, and the name of the other is not known. The time of their births is not known, but the place was at or near this Five Mile Pond.

"The son, Aaron, resided near Springfield, Mass., his occupation was keeping a public house. He had two wives. The names of his sons of first wife were Moses and Rufus. The names of the sons of the second wife are not known, but there were six of them and born in Springfield, Mass.

"Reuben was born at Five Mile Pond. Do not know at what time; was a tanner and currier by occupation and settled in the north part of Connecticut; do not know what town and believe he did not change his residence.

"Zenas Parsons was born at Five Mile Pond and settled in Springfield, Mass. Kept a public house, had one wife and one son and one daughter; do not know their names.

"Eli Parsons was born at Five Mile Pond, first settled in Cherry Valley, Otsego Co., N. Y., from there he moved to Oswego, N. Y., and there died. He was a surveyor and while living at Cherry Valley he held the office of Justice of the Peace and other town offices, and from the records of the Academy of Cherry Valley we learn that institution was established by Eli Parsons and fourteen others, and while he lived in Oswego, he kept a public house. He had three sons and three daughters. Whether they were all born at Cherry Valley, we do not know nor the date of their births. The names of the sons were Eli, Portious and Henry. The names of the daughters were Lettice, Maria, Cynthia and Sophia. Eli, the son, was drowned in Lake Ontario at the time of the War of 1812, while carrying sutlers goods from Oswego to Sackett's Harbor.

"The occupation of Portius was boating on the Erie Canal. Had no children. Where or when he died cannot tell.

"Elijah Parsons (my grandfather) was born at Five Mile Pond about the year 1750. Had two wives and settled in North Parish, Wilbraham, Northampden Co., Mass., about nine miles east of Springfield and died about 1800. He was a farmer; his first wife's name was Eunice Cadwell. With her he had three sons and three daughters. The names of the sons were Erastus, Elijah and Elisha. The names of the daughters were Sarah, Phebe, and Flavia.

"Erastus was born in the year 1772; was married to Catherine Anthony in the year 1801. Was a farmer by occupation and taught school. Lived awhile in Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., then moved to Terre Haute, Ind., and there died, leaving widow and son and one daughter.

"The son ran an Ark (as the rude boats were then called) down the Wabash, into the Ohio; thence into the Mississippi to New Orleans. Sold out and on his return he died of a fever. The daughter married in Indiana, settled there and may be living yet; was when last heard.

"Elijah Parsons, my father, was born in Wilbraham, Mass., the 10th day of April, 1776. Was a carpenter and joiner by trade and worked at the trade upwards of fifty years. Served his apprenticeship in Wilbraham and came to Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., in the year 1795 and assisted in building the first Lutheran Church in Sharon. The next winter attended school at the Cherry Valley Academy, and the next year or year after built the first Dutch Reformed Church in Sharon, etc. He was married to Mary Best, with whom he had seven sons and six daughters."

284 REV. GEORGE⁷ PARSONS (Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Elijah,⁶ was born in Sharon, N. Y., Dec. 13, 1810, and died at Fort Plain, N. Y., May 7, 1900. In his boyhood he learned the printer's trade in the office of the

Cherry Valley, N. Y., Gazette, and later worked in an office in New York City, where Horace Greeley was also employed. Thereafter he was educated at the Oneida Conference Seminary (Cazenovia, N. Y.) and was ordained Deacon of the Methodist Episcopal Church by Bishop Hedding, Aug. 25, 1839, and Elder by Bishop Soule, Aug. 15, 1841. He united with the Maine Conference in 1837, and became a member of the Oneida Conference in 1838, and was assigned to various charges therein, and in the Wyoming Conference until he was placed on the superannuate list about 1879. Thereafter he resided at Fort Plain, N. Y., but continued to preach as supply and to perform other ministerial offices until a few years before his death. The following is an extract from an obituary notice:

"His work in the beginning of his career was largely pioneer and consequently formative. His methods, style of preaching, of exhortation, of prayer, of singing, and counseling seekers, was characteristic of the early Methodists. His spirit, and deportment, were saintly and dignified. He was, indeed, a model of genuineness, of simplicity, of unselfishness, of devotion to one work, a minister of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus."

He married (1) July 10, 1836, at Sharon, N. Y., Elizabeth, daughter of Rev. William and Catharine (Failing) Diefendorf, of Sharon, who was his most efficient helper during his entire ministerial career. He married (2) Sallie A. Diefendorf Ottman, widow of Jeremiah Ottman, a sister of his first wife, May 2, 1878, and, after her death, married (3) July 13, 1893, Sarah A. Stokes, who survived him. Rev. William Diefendorf, born May 26, 1785, was a son of John Jacob Diefendorf, born 1762, a son of one of the Palatine refugees who settled in the Mohawk Valley in the early part of the 18th Century. He was a Revolutionary soldier in the 1st Tryon County Militia, Col. Samuel Campbell, as appears by "New York in the Revolution." He had six sons and six daughters, the sons' names being John, George, Daniel, William, Jonas, and Benjamin.

Catharine Failing, wife of Rev. William Diefendorf, was born Apr. 19, 1789, at Canajoharie, and they were married in 1806, and had fourteen children, as follows: (1) Lucy Ann, b. 17 Jan.,

268 REV. JOHN WESLEY⁷ PARSONS (Elisha,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of Elisha⁶ and Hannah (Taggart)

Parsons, was born near Terre Haute, Vigo Co., Ind., Apr. 5, 1816. He was educated in the country schools and in Terre Haute, and in his youth was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. His charming qualities of mind and heart made him a favorite in the community and his Christian zeal led him into the Gospel ministry before he was twenty-one years of age. He joined the Illinois Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church as an itinerant minister, in 1836 or 1837, and continued in this work for about five years, but this strenuous life impaired his health, and compelled him to give up the regular ministry and become a local preacher. As an itinerant preacher his circuits were in Edgar, Vermilion, and Champaign counties, some of the chief points being Paris, Danville, and Urbana, with many other settlements widely separated. The traveling was on foot, or horseback, with daily preaching and organizing Sabbath schools, churches, etc.

There were practically no roads, and the summer rains, and winter snow and sleet, caused the traveling for most of the year to be through mud and water from one pioneer settlement to another, often many miles, or a day's journey, apart.

Soon after his marriage, in 1841, on account of poor health, he quit the active ministry and turned his attention to farming and fruit raising, and bought a farm where the city of Kankakee now stands, where he lived a few years and then moved to Vermilion Co., where he bought a farm joining that of Judge Wright, his wife's step-father.

In 1853 he bought a farm one mile south of Urbana, Ill., where he died, Mar. 1, 1854. Besides his work as a minister he was favorably known as a nursery man throughout the State. As a local preacher, he was in frequent demand for funerals, revivals, and other special occasions, and he organized the first Sunday school in Easton, Ill. He was greatly honored and loved for his work as a minister and a Christian citizen in the growth and establishment of civic righteousness in a new and growing country.

An incident in his itinerant work will throw a strong light upon the life and times of those pioneer days. While on the Danville

Circuit he met, and became engaged to, his future wife, Miss Salinda Stanfield, a step-daughter of Judge John B. Wright, a distinguished citizen of Vermilion Co., a member of the State Legislature, and who resided about twenty miles west of Danville, Mr. Parsons' temporary home.

The wedding day was fixed, and the groom's wedding suit was ordered two months in advance, with the tailor's promise that it would be ready ten days ahead of the wedding. But in those days all such goods came from New Orleans by river to Terre Haute and from there by ox team to Danville, fifty miles, or by ox team from Chicago, 150 miles.

But an unusually heavy rain had made the roads almost impassable. The tailor had been delayed in getting the cloth and the suit was not finished until late in the afternoon of the day fixed for the wedding at high noon, and to be followed by a wedding dinner. Many anxious friends from far and near and a tearful bride were waiting at Judge Wright's, and an impatient groom, with his presiding elder, who was to perform the ceremony, was at Danville, like Sheridan at Winchester "twenty miles away." But nothing daunted, as soon as the suit of clothes was finished, they mounted their horses and through rain, mud and swamp, they rode on into the dark night, reaching their destination about midnight, to find the dinner eaten, the guests gone, and the family, including the bride, in bed. But at the call of the groom all were soon astir, and the marriage, set for high noon, took place at midnight.

He was married Aug. 17, 1841, and died Mar. 1, 1854. His wife died Mar. 27, 1858. She was a saintly, Christian woman, who, after her husband's death, courageously assumed the responsibilities of her young family, and by her energy and prudence even adding to her husband's estate, but her memory was the most precious legacy she left to her children.

He was educated in the common schools, but was self-educated after his thirteenth year, from nineteen to twenty, then he taught school winters, and, with fifty dollars saved from teaching, he entered Asbury (now DePauw) University in 1853, and worked his way through college, graduating as Valedictorian of his class in 1858. He was Principal of the Battle Ground Collegiate Inst., Ind., four years and President of the Valparaiso Male and Female College, Ind., three years. While teaching, he was licensed to preach by the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was Volunteer Chaplain in the U. S. Christian Commission July to Oct., 1864, and preached about a year (1864-65) at Frankfort, Ind. But preferring to teach, he organized the graded school system at Frankfort, and was Superintendent of schools and Principal of the High School at Frankfort for six years, until June 14, 1872, and on June 15, 1872, he became editor of the Frankfort Crescent, a weekly paper owned by a Stock Co. He gradually acquired the ownership of the stock and by 1890 was the owner of the paper and the building in which it was conducted.

In 1885 he made the paper a daily, and in 1891 sold out the paper and traveled a year in Europe.

Since then he has been engaged in various pursuits, part of the time as orange grower in Florida, and now (1911) in insurance and literary work at Frankfort.

He has always been active in the work of the M. E. Church and Sunday school at Frankfort, and in politics an active and influential Democrat, and has been a member of both branches of the State Legislature. He is still active and in good health in his eighty-second year, and writes from ten to twelve columns weekly for two daily papers at Frankfort, Ind.

He married Nov. 14, 1861, Salome Barr, b. Oct. 2, 1835, in Lancaster Co., Pa., dau. of Abram and Catharine Barr. She was educated in a ladies' seminary, and was a teacher before marriage, and died Feb. 4, 1897, in Dayton, Ind. She was a descendant from the Cecils of Maryland and of the distinguished Dr. Rush, of Philadelphia. An obituary of her says: "The Barrs and Rushes, from whom Mrs. Staley are descended, are of old Colonial stock, and the Barrs have been prominently identified with the early growth of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana. time he had greatly enlarged and improved his holdings of real estate. His thrift, enterprise and energy has made him one of the best known and influential citizens of Kendall Co. He has always taken an active interest in public affairs and has served his town in various local offices, particularly as Commissioner of Highways for twenty-one years.

At this time (1911) he is living in Plano as a retired farmer, but is still active in real estate business and as a buyer of stock for the Chicago market. He married, Jan. 9, 1866, Cordelia Faxon, daughter of Joseph Holland and Nelly (McNaughton) Faxon, of Greenwich, Washington Co., N. Y., a descendant of Thomas Faxon, who settled in Braintree, Mass., 1635.

438 REV. ANDREW⁸ PARSONS (James,⁷ Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), b. Aug. 15, 1830, was educated at the Cherry Valley Academy, N. Y., the Albany Normal School, and Williams College, Mass., class of 1857. He was one of the honor men of his class, which entitled him to be a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, thereafter organized at Williams College. He was three years at the Auburn Theological Seminary. His first pastorate was the Presbyterian Church at Richfield Springs, N. Y., 1860. He became connected with the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, and for several years was located in Kansas and Wisconsin. Returning to the East, he was pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Hunter, Greene Co., the Reformed Church at Sharon, and Knox, Albany Co., N. Y. About 1897 he removed to California, where his wife died soon after. For several years prior he had been interested in the teachings of the Swedenborgian Church, and, about 1899, he began to preach as supply to a congregation of that church on O'Farrell Street, San Francisco. In 1901 he was ordained a minister of that church in Brooklyn, N. Y., and on his return to San Francisco became the regular pastor of the church on O'Farrell Street and continued its pastor until his death, Aug. 23, 1904. In 1861 he married, at Auburn, N. Y., Salona White, daughter of Deacon Alanson White, of Sennett, Cayuga Co., N. Y., who died at Palo Alto, Cal., 1898. In 1901 he married Elizabeth Jones, of New York City, who survived him.

The following is an extract from an obituary written by one of his parishioners, of San Francisco:

"Mr. Parsons was greatly beloved by his parishioners of the New Church. He was a genial, engaging gentleman, of a most prepossessing aspect, charming those with whom he came in contact. His sermons were admirably selected, and bore hope and consolation to many a distressed heart. He who writes these lines, and who was profoundly impressed with his goodness and sincerity often entered his church on Sunday morning agitated and perturbed in heart, to emerge from it, serene and at peace. Often has he been moved to tears by the words of consolation from those lips now stilled on earth, but eloquent in heavenly realms. There was a graciousness in his smile, a tenderness in his eyes which were a balm to all who sat before him. His life on this earth measured by spiritual standards was highly successful, and his demise has left a vacancy in many a heart which was wont to receive from him solace and encouragement in many despondent hours."

439 MARY⁶ PARSONS (James,⁷ Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), daughter of James⁷ Parsons, b. at Sharon Springs, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1831, was educated at Cherry Valley Academy, N. Y.; married Apr. 9, 1855, Charles H., son of Rev. Henry and Nuel (Van Doren) Topping, b. May 20, 1830, at Charleston, Montgomery Co., N. Y. He was engaged in mercantile business during nearly all his active life, and the latter part of his life at Delavan, Wis., where he died in Aug., 1886.

Rev. Henry Topping, father of Charles H. Topping, was born Mar. 14, 1804, and married Dec. 28, 1828, Nuel, daughter of William Van Doren. He was pastor of the Baptist Church at Leesville, Schoharie Co., N. Y., prior to 1839, when he was appointee of the American Baptist Home Mission Society, and was missionary in the Territory of Wisconsin from 1839 to 1846. His evangelistic visitations resulted in the organization of churches at Walworth, Beloit, Clinton Junction, and Elkhorn, Wis., and Rockton, Ill. He was pastor of the Baptist Church at Walworth, Wis., from 1847 to 1852.

He retired from the ministry on account of ill health in 1855, and died at Ottawa, Kan., Nov. 20, 1870.

His wife was born Sept. 6, 1808, and died Oct. 11, 1880, at the home of her son, at Delavan, Wis.

His American ancestor was Thomas Topping, who, according to Savage (Genealogical Dic.) was of Milford and Wethersfield, Conn., about 1639, and later settled in South Hampton, L. I.

Indian Agent to the Cherokees, Chocktaws and Chickasaws in the Indian Territory.

At his suggestion the agency was abolished by the government, as the Indians had attained a high degree of civilization. In 1875 he returned to New York and resumed the practice of law with his brother, Henry, until his death, in 1887. The last ten years of his life he resided in Montclair, N. J., where his wife died in 1886, he dying Feb. 12, 1887. Both were buried in the Sharon, N. Y., cemetery. Both he and his wife were members of the Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn and Montclair, while residing in those places.

He married, Sept. 19, 1863, Martha A., daughter of Deacon Rufus and Amy (Kimball) Pierson, then residing at Leesville, Schoharie Co., N. Y.

441 HENRY⁸ PARSONS (James,⁷ Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), b. at Sharon Springs, N. Y., Nov. 21, 1835, was educated at Fort Plain Seminary, N. Y., Williston Seminary, East Hampton, Mass., and Union College, Schenectady, class of 1861. He was a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He read law for one year in the office of Stephen L. Magoon, at Hudson, N. Y., and in July and Aug., 1862, assisted in recruiting volunteers for Co. G of the 134th Regt., N. Y. Vols., then being raised in the Counties of Schenectady and Schoharie, State of N. Y. He was commissioned 1st Lieut. in that Co. in Sept., 1862, and with his Regt. joined the Army in Virginia, about the first of Oct., 1862. He was acting Adjutant of his Regt. in Nov. and Dec., 1862, and was promoted to the Captaincy of his company in Jan., 1863, and resigned in June, 1863. The only important engagement he took part in was the battle of Chancellorsville, where his Regt. was a part of the 11th Army Corps. In Dec., 1863, he was admitted to the Bar in the City of New York, and has continued in the practice of the law in New York City ever since. In July, 1867, he married (1) Agnes, daughter of John and Elizabeth (Whit-side) Turnbull, of the City of New York. She was born Dec. 13, 1840, at Deenston, Scotland, and her parents came to this country, May, 1842. She had been a teacher in the public schools of N. Y. City, and for about three years prior to marriage was the Principal of the Primary Department in the Boy's Public School No. 35, on 13th Street, near 6th Avenue. She died Mar. 19, 1869, leaving one child, Agnes, born March 4, 1869.

He married (2) Mar. 5, 1874, Fannie, b. Sept. 23, 1850, daughter of Dr. John H. and Henrietta (Peale) Griscom, of N. Y. City. Dr. Griscom's father was John Griscom, LL. D., noted as an educator and philanthropist in the early part of the last century, and Mrs. Griscom's father was Rembrandt Peale, the artist, a son of Charles Wilson Peale, an artist, in Colonial and Revolutionary times, and an officer in the Revolution. After his second marriage, Mr. Parsons resided from 1873 to 1882 in Brooklyn, from 1882 to 1899 at Rye, Westchester Co., N. Y., and since that time, in N. Y. City. From 1869 to 1873, Mr. Parsons was an Elder in the Fourth Avenue Presbyterian Church, N. Y. City, Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby, pastor. He was also an Elder in the Memorial Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, and the Rye Presbyterian Church. He was a commissioner from the Westchester Presbytery to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in 1893 at Washington, D. C., and again a few years later at Winona, Ind.

HENRY PARSONS.

In politics, Mr. Parsons has always been a Republican. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Alumni Association of the City of New York, the Delta Kappa Epsilon Association, the New York Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and the New York County Lawyers' Association.

Mrs. Parsons for several years was active in educational matters in New York City, as a member of a local school board, and she organized and conducted the first children's school farm in DeWitt Clinton Park, on the west side of the city, and is President of the International Children's School Farm League.

Her interest in educational and beneficent matters took active shape after she had reared a large family to adult years, and may have, to some extent, been inherited from public-spirited ancestors, a brief mention of whose lives I have copied from Lippincott's Encyclopedia of American Biography.

"Griscom (John, LL. D.), an American educationalist, a member of the Society of Friends, was born in Salem Co., N. J., 1774. He was for more than a quarter of a century an eminent teacher in New York, wither he removed in 1807. Among other things he was chiefly instrumental in organizing the Society for the Prevention of Pauperism and Crime, which was the parent of many important reform movements. He was one of the first to introduce lectures on philosophy, chemistry, geology, etc., and with Dr. Mott, Dr. Francis and others organized Rutgers Medical College (New York), in which he was made professor of chemistry and natural philosophy. 'For thirty years,' says Dr. Francis, 'Dr. Griscom was the acknowledged head of all other teachers of chemistry among us. He died in 1852. He was author of "A Year in Europe," 2 Vols., 1823.'

"Griscom (John Hoskins), a physician, a son of the preceding, was born in N. Y. City, 1809. He became professor of chemistry in the N. Y. College of Pharmacy, 1836.

"He wrote 'The Sanitary Condition of the Laboring Classes of New York,' and the 'Uses and Abuses of Air.' Died Apr. 24, 1874."

"Peale (Charles Wilson), an American painter and naturalist, born at Charlestown, Md., 1741. He studied for a time in England under West, and after his return settled in Philadelphia, where he soon acquired a high reputation as a portrait painter. He afterwards founded in that city a museum of natural curiosities, called by his name and containing the skeleton of a mammoth. He was also one of the founders of the Academy of Fine Arts, to which he contributed numerous pictures. Died, 1827." He painted several portraits of Washington and of others, prominent in Colonial and Revolutionary times, and was an officer in the Continental Army.

"Peale (Rembrandt), a son of the preceding, was born in Bucks Co., Pa., 1778. Studied painting under West and subsequently devoted himself to portrait painting in Paris. After his return to Philadelphia he produced, among other works, the 'Court of Death,' and 'The Roman Daughter.' Died in 1860."

For more extended reference to each of the above, see Appellton's Encyclopedia of American Biography.

They resided at Makanda, Ill., until 1870, then moved to Ottawa, Kan. Gideon Robinson was a son of David, a son of

Maj. Ebenezer Robinson, a Revolutionary soldier in the 7th Regt., Dutchess Co. Militia.

It is believed that Ebenezer settled at or near Carmel, Putnam Co., N. Y., between 1740 and 1756, coming from Falmouth, or Cape Cod, Mass., and that he is a descendant of Isaac (son of John Robinson, of Leyden), who came to Plymouth, 1630.

Jasper P. Robinson was a soldier during the entire Civil War, enlisting first for six months, Aug. 18, 1861, in Denver City, Col., Home Guards; re-enlisted Apr., 1862, in Co. C., 2d Regt., Col. Vols., which later became 1st Regt. Col. Vols. Cav., for three years. He served in various battles on the frontiers, and in Kansas and Missouri. He re-enlisted Jan., 1864, for three years, or the end of the war, and was appointed Hospital Steward at Ft. Lyon; served until close of the war, and was honorably discharged at Ft. Reilly, Nov., 1865.

443 SETH^b PARSONS (James,⁷ Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), b. Feb. 26, 1847, at Sharon Springs, N. Y., son of James⁷ and Hannah (Moyer) Parsons, was educated at Sharon Springs and the Claverack Academy, N. Y. He is a farmer and manager of his several farms, a hop grower and dealer in hops. He is President of the Sharon Seward and Carlisle Co-operative Ins. Co., and a director of the First Nat. Bank of Sharon Springs, and is very influential and highly respected in his part of the state. He is one of the leaders in the Republican party in Schoharie Co., and a member of the Masonic Order.

He married Dec. 8, 1868, Helen, dau. of Lorenzo and Miranda (Harper) Smith, of Sharon.

He died at the village of Cobleskill, N. Y., Dec. 23, 1911. The funeral was Tuesday, Dec. 26, a short service at his Cobleskill home, then by train to Sharon Springs, where a service was had at the Methodist Episcopal Church. Some extracts from obituary notices will give local contemporaneous expression to an appreciation of his life.

From the Cobleskill Index :

"Seth Parsons, one of the best known men in Schoharie County, died at his residence on East Main Street, in Cobleskill, early Saturday morning, from an attack of acute indigestion after an illness of but three days. The news of his death came as a shock to his friends, many of whom had not known of his illness.

"Mr. Parsons was a son of James and Hannah (Moyer) Parsons and was born at Sharon on the old homestead cleared up by his great-grandfather on his mother's side.

"He was a direct descendant on his father's side from the New England Colonist, Cornet Joseph Parsons, who came to Springfield, Mass., from England, in 1636, and was one of the founders of Northampton, Mass., in 1655. . . .

"Aside from the superintendency of his large farms Mr. Parsons was for more than thirty years an extensive hop buyer.

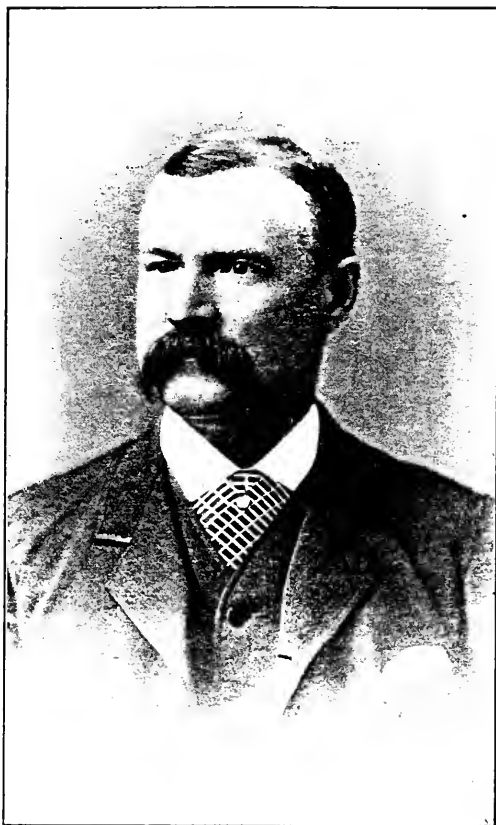

. . . Mr. Parsons was President of the Sharon Seward and Carlisle Co-operative Fire Insurance Company, a director in the Sharon Springs National Bank, and the Canajoharie Bank, a member of the Masonic fraternity, a trustee of Trinity Church of Sharon Springs, and for the past four years he has been manager of the Gardner property at Sharon Springs.

"Three years ago he bought the handsome residence on East Main Street in this village, which he occupied during the winter, returning to Sharon for the summer.

"Both homes were synonymous for hospitality and good cheer. The sympathy of hosts of friends go out to the wife, who is sorely stricken."

From the Cobleskill Times :

"His acquaintance was extensive, no man being better known throughout Schoharie, Montgomery and Otsego counties. . . . He was united in marriage to Miss Helen Smith, daughter of Mr.

SETH PARSONS, OF SHARON SPRINGS, N. Y.

and Mrs. Lorenzo Smith, of Sharon Springs. Two little daughters came to their home, who died in their youth. But Mr. Parsons has filled a parent's place to scores of young people. His 'bread has been cast upon the waters' many times in the way of financial aid and advice to many young men and women, seeking an education, and today these young people are filling places of trust and responsibility. In his home he was a most devoted husband, and the Parsons home was noted far and wide for its hospitality. The latch string ever hung out and the welcome always rang true and sincere. . . . For some years he served as trustee of the Episcopal church at Sharon Springs, but he was liberal in his contributions to many other churches. . . .

"At the funeral the church was filled to overflowing. Many could not gain entrance. Mr. Parsons filled a large place in the hearts of the people of his home town. His deeds of philanthropy were many, yet they were done so unostentatiously that few besides those benefited knew of them. When sorrow came to a home in Sharon Springs Seth Parsons consoled and aided. In times of distress to unfortunates, his teams took wood, coal and provisions to poor people, who looked to him almost as a kind father. His generosity was fitly exemplified at the time of the recent fire that destroyed Feather's Hotel and the old Shaule house at Sharon Springs.

"After the flames had died down, an Italian family that occupied the Shaule property, a man, wife and three children, sat on a couple of old trunks, all that they had saved. The children were without clothing, or a roof to cover their heads. Mr. Parsons took the children in his wagon to a store and bought them clothing, and then fitted up part of his store house for them to live in, where they still remain, rent free. When the casket was taken from the train Tuesday, the poor Italian woman knelt and kissed the coffin, saying, 'Our friend is gone.' This is but one of hundreds of instances of Mr. Parson's kindness of heart. He was a father to the poor, and a valuable counselor to all, and his advice was often sought. His death brings grief to the entire community."

447 REV. CHARLES WESLEY⁸ PARSONS, D. D. (Rev. George,⁷ Elijah,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), youngest child of the Rev. George⁷ Parsons, b. Jan. 7, 1851; was educated at the Springfield Academy, N. Y., Cazanovia Seminary and the Wyoming Conference Seminary at Kingston, Pa., and Drew Theological Seminary at Madison, N. J., and was ordained an elder of the M. E. Church in 1874. His first charge was at Fairfield, Herkimer Co., N. Y., where on Aug. 1, 1876, he married Emma R. Ford, daughter of Milton Ford, of that place. His various charges in succession thereafter were Gouverneur, Watertown, and Rome, N. Y.; Grand Avenue M. E. Church, Kansas City, Mo.; St. Paul's Church, Newark, N. J., and the Hanson Place Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. About this time his health became seriously impaired, the result of excessive and untiring labor and the responsibility of churches of constantly increasing importance. His ability as an organizer and administrator, and his eloquence as a preacher, caused his services to be sought by large and important churches, and the result was a complete physical breakdown. In April, 1894, he surrendered the pastorate of the Hanson Place Church, and, after a year of rest and medical and surgical treatment, he accepted a call, in the spring of 1895, to the Chestnut Street Church at Portland, Me., where he spent three years of active pastoral work but attended with much physical suffering. For four years thereafter he gave up active work trying by changes of climate and rest to restore his health. In the autumn of 1903 he undertook the pastorate of the First Church at Minneapolis, Minn., but was again stricken with pain and rested until the spring of 1905, when he was transferred to the Newark Conference, N. J., and sent to Grace Church, Plainfield, and continued in his work until about two months prior to his death, Dec. 22, 1907.

It is not too much to say that he ranked among the most eloquent, effective and popular preachers in the M. E. Church during the last quarter of the past century.

Not the least among his many engaging qualities was his genial affability, which won him many friends in all ranks of society, and his companionship was greatly prized. His zeal and enthusiasm commanded his entire powers. Of a highly nervous temperament and sensitive conscience, no half-hearted efforts satisfied him, and it is no exaggeration to say that he gave his life in the work of his Master.

454 DR. GEORGE ROBINS⁸ PARSONS (Rev. John Wesley,⁷ Elisha,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), son of John Wesley⁷ and Salinda (Stanfield) Parsons, b. July 27, 1842, left fatherless at the age of twelve, and motherless at the age of sixteen. Early developed those manly qualities which made him the comfort of his mother, while she lived, and the pride of his brothers and sister. At the age of nineteen, at President Lincoln's first call for three years volunteers in the Civil War, he enlisted in Co. C, 25th Regt., Ill. Vols. He was severely wounded at the battle of Missionary Ridge, from which he never fully recovered.

He was thereafter educated at the school established by the State of Illinois for her soldiers at Fulton, and afterwards at the Hahneman Medical College at Chicago, and he practiced his profession at Chebanse, Ill., until 1875, when ill health compelled him to seek a milder climate, and he removed to Kerrville, Tex.,

where his health was partially restored, so that he was able to continue the practice of his profession for a time. But in 1886 he engaged in other branches of business, and was for a time a mail and railroad contractor.

He was a man of great energy and gave a hearty support to all public enterprises. Although a Republican in politics and a Northerner, and living in a Southern and Democratic community, he enjoyed the confidence of all and was for seven years Mayor of Kerrville, where he died, Nov. 27, 1893.

The following extract from an obituary notice in a local paper indicates the sentiment and estimate of his fellow citizens:

"Dr. Parsons was a man who stood high in the estimation of the people, was loved by a host of friends and respected by all. A man of high intelligence, ambitious and of penetrating mind. Identified with Kerrville from the first, he made her interest his interest, and ever stood among the leaders in all and every enterprise calculated to advance the interests of the town. As Mayor, he virtually had oversight of our schools, in which behalf he was untiring in his efforts to secure their prosperity. In the death of Dr. G. R. Parsons, Kerrville has lost one of her most energetic builders, the country one of her best citizens, his wife a loving husband, and the children a doting father."

He married at Joliet, Ill., Oct. 14, 1870, Mary Adele, daughter of Remy and Lucy (Chobert) Calais, born Jan. 10, 1845, at Beaver Creek, Iroquois Co., Ill. Her father was born Jan. 1, 1811, in the town of Thebaumeuil, France, and came to America in 1835, settling in Illinois in 1837. He died at Joliet, Ill., Mar. 7, 1907.

Her mother was born in Cold Water, Mich., Sept. 4, 1826, and died at Joliet, Mar. 27, 1853. Her parents were married Nov. 4, 1840, at Beaver Creek, Ill.

455 REV. NATHANIEL EMERSON⁸ PARSONS (Rev. John Wesley,⁷ Elisha,⁶ Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), b. Apr. 24, 1849, youngest child of John Wesley⁷ and Salinda (Stanfield) Parsons, left an orphan at the age of nine, was adopted into the family of Abraham Yeazel, a prosperous farmer having no children, residing near Homer, Ill., and whose wife, a woman of more than ordinary intelligence and Christian character, became strongly attached to the orphan boy, who returned her love in full measure. To her he ascribed more than to all others, whatever of success and usefulness he has had in life.

In the spring of 1864 he enlisted in Co. K, 133d Regt., Ill. Inf., and served to the end of the war. He was educated in the public schools of Homer, and the Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill. He became a member of the M. E. Church at sixteen, and a Sunday school superintendent and class leader. At seventeen he was licensed to exhort, and at eighteen to preach. He taught school in Illinois for several years, and in 1872 went to the Indian Territory as a missionary to the Chickasaw Nation, teaching school and preaching to the whites and Indians, and organized a church and built the first house of worship in that Nation.

In 1873 he joined the Indian Mission Conference of the M. E. Church, South. He married Oct. 1, 1874, Clara J., daughter of Zimri B. and Mary Williams, of Homer, Ill., an educated, refined and devout Christian woman, who had been a successful teacher. She entered heartily into his work among the Indians, for the next four years.

The failure of his wife's health caused the giving up of this mission work and, in 1878, he removed to Kerrville, Tex., and for two years was Principal of the public school at that place. In 1880 he returned to Homer, and in 1882 he joined the Columbia River Conference of the M. E. Church in Oregon, and the Territories of Washington and Idaho, where his wife regained her health, and the next sixteen years were spent in laying the foundation of Christ's kingdom in that wonderful inland empire. The principal churches were Waitsburg, Sprague, Spokane and Pomeroy, in Washington, Moscow, in Idaho, and Milton, Oregon, and he was Presiding Elder of the Walla Walla and Spokane districts. In the meantime the fathers, Williams and Yeazel, had died, and the mothers had grown old and feeble, and in 1898 he was transferred back to the Illinois Conference, where he continued his active work in the ministry until 1906, when he took a supernumerary relation, that he might give his entire time to the loving care of his foster and adopted mother, now (1909) in her 97th year.

He was educated in the public schools of Oswego, and at the age of seventeen began sailing on the Great Lakes, rapidly rising until he became first mate and master of the vessel, "Commodore Foot," and later became engaged in the manufacture of slack barrel staves and heading, at Maple Mill, Salamanca, and Frewsburg, New York, and in 1874 formed a co-partnership with Frances Hood, at St. Charles, Saginaw County, Mich., under style of F. Hood & Co., which firm subsequently became one of the largest manufacturers of slack barrel cooperage stock in the country, operating mills at St. Charles, Oakley, Merrill and Wheeler, Mich.

In 1886 he bought a large general store at St. Charles and shortly after bought a farm near that place, which was soon converted into one of the largest stock farms in Saginaw County.

During 1893 he removed to Saginaw, where he resided until his death.

He held office in the school district, and in the Township of St. Charles, having been supervisor of the latter for several years.

Feb. 18, 1837, at Catonville, Baltimore Co., Md., and m. at Point Pleasant, West Va., Nov. 30, 1868, Kate Elizabeth Byers, dau. of John A. and Charlotte Mary (Davis) Byers, of Hancock, Md. He was educated at St. Timothy's Military Academy, Md., Kenyon College, Ohio, and the Virginia Theological Seminary, 1867. In 1859 he left college and engaged in teaching to finish his education, but when the Civil War began, he entered the Confederate States Army, enlisting for one year, June 1, 1861, in the Howard County Cavalry, at Leesburg, that company composed of his own associates splendidly equipped and trained. It was attached to the regiment of Col. Angus McDonald until July 20, 1861, when it became Co. K of the First Va. Regt., under Col. J. E. B. Stuart, Col. Fitzhugh and Col. William E. Jones until in March, 1862, this regiment was reorganized, when with one-half his company he aided in forming the First Maryland Battalion of Cavalry, and re-enlisted for two years, from June 1, 1862. He served in the field with his command until after the second battle of Manassas, August, 1862, when, having had some knowledge of medicine, he was placed in charge of the wounded of his command at Buckland, Va. In Nov. he was relieved from this charge by the recovery of his comrades, and returned to his Co. for the Valley campaign. In the summer of 1863 he was appointed hospital steward in the field and hospital and ordered to Richmond, where the rest of his service was performed in active duty in the defenses of the city. He was honorably discharged at the termination of his enlistment, July 6, 1864, but remained a volunteer in the Third Va. Infantry until Dec. 31, 1864, when, finally discharged, he entered the Virginia Theological Seminary to prepare for ordination to the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

He was ordained deacon, 1867, and priest in 1868. He was rector of Christ Church, Point Pleasant, diocese of Va., from 1867 to 1873, and rector of St. John's Church, West Brownsville, diocese of Pittsburgh, 1873 to 1879, and assistant minister of St. Stephen's Church, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., since Nov., 1879.

He has been much interested in American history and genealogy, having published quite a number of titles, especially a work of 800 pages, entitled "Virginia Genealogies." He is a life member of the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society, filling at this time (1911) the office of Corresponding Secretary and Librarian, Historiographer and Curator, and has, since 1894, edited all its publications. He is also a member of many historical, scientific, patriotic, and other societies.

Mrs. Hayden is descended from Dr. John Byers, of Delaware, who came to America from Scotland after the Revolutionary War, and her father, John A. Byers, was a prominent Civil Engineer.

ALLIED FAMILIES

Some families allied by marriage to the descendants of Elijah⁶ Parsons (Elijah,⁵ Aaron,⁴ Daniel,³ Joseph,² Joseph¹), and to his son, James⁷ Parsons.

THE BEST FAMILY

The first appearance of families by this name in America was in the last of the 17th or first of the 18th Century, in what is now Columbia Co., N. Y. It is believed by many that these settlers came from Holland, but the name may be of English origin, as it appears earlier in English history than in Dutch, and it is not unreasonable to presume that families by the name went to Holland during the Puritan emigration in the early part of the 17th Century.

The name first appears here about the time of the emigration to this country of the Palatine Refugees, who settled first in Columbia and Ulster Counties, N. Y. They had fled to England in large numbers from the German Palatinates, because of religious oppression, and about 1710 Queen Ann had found a home for them in this country.

In the Hudson Gazette History of Columbia County, N. Y. (1900), is an account of the arrival, in the ship "Beaver," May, 1661, of several families named "Van Beest," the name indicating that they were Dutch, but there is no evidence as to where they settled.

The name was distinguished in English history in the 16th Century, as appears in the English Dictionary of National Biography, from which I condense the records of the following representative persons by the name:

GEORGE BEST died 1584; navigator; accompanied Martin Frobisher in the three voyages (1576, 1577 and 1578), undertaken to discover the Northwest passage, and he published, on the return from the third voyage, an account thereof in three volumes in London. In the third voyage the fleet consisted of seventeen ships, one, the "Jane Ann," was commanded by Captain Best. This work was translated to Latin, French and Italian.

PAUL BEST (1590-1657), Controversialist, came of a family that had been long of the gentry of North Riding, of Yorkshire; but his father, James Best, having removed to East Riding, was resident in the rectory house of Hatton Cranswich, near Duffield, known as the burial place of Alfred, King of Northumberland. Here, it is believed, Paul was born about 1590. After his education at Cambridge and the death of his father, he spent considerable time on the continent in Germany, in Poland, and as a soldier under Gustavus Adolphus. While in Germany he studied Unitarian theology, and on his return to England, he wrote and published his theological views freely, attacking the doctrine of the Trinity with great zeal, for which he was arrested and committed to the Gate House in Feb., 1644-5. The House voted that he be hanged for his offense, but he was subsequently released, as is supposed by the influence of Cromwell.

His biographer was Rev. Roger Ley. The parish register of Little Duffield gives the dates of his death and burial as follows:

"1657 PAUL BEST, Master of Arts, died at Great Duffield 17th Sept., and was buried at Little Duffield 19th Sept. in the Church yard."

THOMAS BEST (1570-1638), Captain in the English Navy, was probably a son of Capt. George Best, the companion of Frobisher. He was appointed 30th Dec., 1611, to command the "Red Dragon," a ship of 600 tons and 200 men, then fitted for a voyage to the East Indies, but was attacked by the Portuguese at Surat, whom he defeated. He did signal service for several years in the service of the East India Co., and later in the British Navy.

The following, as to the ancestors of George Best, is taken from the "Family of Best in America," by Charles Best Benson, of Hudson, N. Y., published 1909:

"The American ancestor of George Best was Jacob Best, mentioned in 'Documentary History of New York, Vol. 3, p. 572,' as Jacob Bast, a Palatine volunteer for the expedition against Canada, 1711, from Annsburg (now Germantown), probably named after Queen Ann, who purchased part of Livingston Manor about 1710, upon which to settle the Palatine refugees, who had fled to England from religious oppression. He married Anna Christina Dietrichin (Dederick), of Kingston, and had the following children: Anna Maria, Elizabeth, Johannes, Hermanus, Jacob, Edward, and Coenradt.

"Harmanus Best married about 1750 and had the following children (probably not in order of birth):

"Catrien, who married Jacob Decker.

"Christina, who married Peter Best, a son of Johannes (her uncle).

"Magdalena, who married David Batz (Potts).

"Jacob Harmen, who married Eva Minkler.

"Anna, who married Seth Tobey.

"George, who married Marytje Musick (Mesick).

"Elizabeth, who married Martin T. Cooper.

"Harmen Best was living in 1790 in the vicinity of Clermont, south of Johnstown and north of Blue Store, in the town of Livingston."

In January, 1800, Elijah⁶ Parsons married Mary, daughter of George and Maria (Mesick) Best, then living in the town of Sharon, N. Y.

GEORGE BEST was born in the town of Clermont, Columbia Co., N. Y., May, 1753, a son of Harmon (or Herman) and Mareitje (Revick) Best, and Maria Mesick was born in the town of Livingston, Columbia Co., Feb., 1756, a daughter of Hendrick and Catharine (Dedrick) Mesick. They were married Feb. 5, 1773.

The above record as to the Best family is in the records of the Reformed Church at Germantown, N. Y., and of the Mesick family in the Reformed Church at Livingston, N. Y.

In the first U. S. census of householders, taken in 1790, we find the name of Herman Best in the town of Clermont, Columbia Co., N. Y., the family consisting of two males and three females, and the family of George Best consisting of one male over 16 years, four under 16, five females, and four slaves.

In the town of Livingston is the name of Hendrick Mesick, the family consisting of two males, 2 females, and four slaves.

In Munsell's American Ancestry, Vol. 2, p. 80, and Vol. 9, p. 150, we find that Hendrick Mesick was a son of Fritz (Frederick) Mesick, believed to be a Palatine refugee from Rheim, near Heidelberg, Germany, born in 1694, came to America in 1719, settled in Columbia Co., and that the log house built by him in the town of Livingston was standing at the time of that record (1887). Hendrick was born in 1715 and died in 1809. His son, Peter of Claverack, born 1750, was a soldier in the Revolutionary War at the battle of Stillwater. George Best, his father, Herman Best, and Hendrick Mesick were soldiers in the Revolutionary War, their names being in "New York in the Revolution."

In the above mentioned history of Columbia Co., by the Hudson Gazette, Vol. 1, p. 147, is this statement:

"On the 27th of March, 1791, a special act was passed authorizing the building of a school house and the maintaining of a School Master in the town of Clermont out of the monies arising from excise, and other sources, in the hands of the overseers of the poor, and Robert R. Livingston, Samuel Ten Broeck, John Cooper, William Wilson, Marks Blatner, and George Best were directed to carry out the provisions of the act."

In the records of the N. Y. Council of Appointment, Vol. 1, pp. 988, 125, George Best is mentioned as Adjutant of the Columbia Co. Regiment, Col. Henry Livingston, in 1786-7, and at page 263, in 1793, is this record:

"John Wigram, Adjutant, vice George Best, moved off."

This indicates that in 1793, or shortly prior thereto, George Best and family removed from Columbia Co., to Sharon Schoharie Co., N. Y.

They lived on the farm, now within the corporation of Sharon Springs, on the turnpike, later owned by David Eldridge and now (1910) owned by Mr. Clausen. There he and his wife died and were buried in the family cemetery, but later were removed to the Sharon cemetery near Leesville. The record on their tombstones is:

"George Best died Aug. 19, 1811, aged 58 ys., 2 mos., 19 days. Maria Best his wife died Feb. 7, 1800, aged 43 ys., 11 mos., 21 days."

The will of George Best, dated Apr. 2, 1811, is recorded in the office of the surrogate of Schoharie Co., N. Y., and disposes of a large estate, for those times, in real estate and personal property, some of the real estate being in Ontario Co., N. Y. He mentions the following children: Sons, John G., Peter G., Henry G. and Jacob G., and daughters, Mary, wife of Elijah Parsons, Margaret, wife of Henry Platner, Hannah (then unmarried), the heirs of his deceased daughter, Catharine, wife of Elias Young, Elizabeth, wife of Marcus Platner, and Polly, wife of John Potts.

ria (wife of Samuel W. Voorhees), William, John.

THE MOYER FAMILY

I CHRISTOPHER¹ MOYER, the grandfather of Hannah, wife of James⁷ Parsons, was born about 1750, in the town of Watervleit, Albany Co., N. Y. His father, Philip Myers, was the owner of a large farm in that town, was of German descent, and is believed to have come to this country with his parents. Why the name was changed from Myers to Moyer is not known, but the same interchange of names occurs in the Moyer family in Pennsylvania. His name is recorded among the Revolutionary soldiers of New York both as Moyer and Myers.

His younger brother, Philip Myers, occupied the father's farm at Watervleit after the war, and his will, recorded in the Surrogate's office, Albany Co., mentions the following children, who were always recognized as the cousins of the children of Christopher Moyer, to-wit: Sons, Andrew, Philip and Francis; daughters, Elizabeth, wife of Andrew Clute, Maria, wife of Jacob Fonda, Lena, wife of Philip Hemstreat, Sarah, wife of Thomas Staats, Catharine, wife of James Houghtaling, and Rachel.

Christopher Moyer's war record appears in part in the certificate of the Pension Bureau, a copy of which follows. He was a member of Capt. Reillay's Rangers, who did conspicuous service under the direction of the Commissioners of Conspiracies, or Safety, at Albany in the detection and arrest of those hostile to the patriots, a record of whose work was published, 1909, by the N. Y. State historian. In the same company of Rangers was one, Philip Harwick, as appears in "New York in the Revolution," who is believed to have been either the father or a brother of Hannah Harwick, who married Christopher Moyer. There is a tradition in the family that during the war he was the lessee of a farm where is now the city of Troy, and that at least on one occasion he was called into service, leaving his wife to gather the wheat harvest, in which she personally assisted, taking with her into the fields her infant child, either Catharine or Andrew.

He removed to Sharon in the early part of the last century and bought lands of De Witt Clinton and John L. Norton in 1812, as appears by deeds recorded in the Schoharie Co. Clerk's office. He died in Sharon, May 11, 1847, aged 96 years, 10 months, and his wife, Hannah, died Apr. 27, 1837, aged 85 years, 9 months, as appears on their tomb stones in the Sharon cemetery.

THE COOK FAMILY

1 KASPER¹ KOCH OR CASPER¹ COOK.

2 CAPT. RUDOLPH² KOCH OR COOK.

From the history of Montgomery Co., N. Y., by Beers (1878) and other sources, we learn that Kasper¹ Koch (later known as Casper¹ Cook) was born Aug. 5, 1700, in Steinmetz Canton, of Zurich, Switzerland, that he married, Oct. 27, 1722, Verena Muller, and that he came to this country in 1725. He had four sons whose names are known (possibly more children): Rudolph,² born 1728, Bandus,² born 1735, Severinus,² b. 1737, and Johannes,² born 1740. One statement is that he came to this country in 1740, bringing his wife and the three older sons, and that Johannes was born on the passage over. He settled in Stone Arabia, town of Palatine, Montgomery Co., N. Y., where at that time some of the Palatine refugees, from religious oppression in Germany, had settled and which gave the name to the town. There the most of his descendants continued to reside until after the Revolution. In the early part of the last Century several of his descendants removed to Verona, Oneida Co., N. Y., but later several families removed from Verona and also from Palatine to Michigan.

From the records of the Reformed Church of Stone Arabia we find that Severinus,³ son of Rudolph² Koch, was born Feb. 15, 1752. He was a soldier in the Revolution, serving when called from 1776 to 1781, as appears from his pension certificate, a copy of which follows. He took part in the battle of Quiskany in the 2d Regt. Tryon Co. Militia, Col. Jacob Klock, and we find, from "New York in the Revolution," in the same regiment the names of his father, Capt. Rudolph,² his uncle, Capt. Severinus,² and Lieutenant John,² and as privates, his uncle, Baudus,² his cousin, Casper, Jr.,⁵ and his brother, Rudolph³.

The Battle of Oriskany has rightfully been regarded as one of the most important and decisive of the Revolution. It prevented St. Leger, with his Tories and Indian allies, joining the army of Burgoyne, and the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga secured the French alliance. The name Severinus Cook also appears in the "Report of the Commissioners of Conspiracies," published by the State historian of New York (1909), as one of the commissioners for Tryon County, but the fair presumption is that it was the uncle and not the nephew by the same name.

3 SEVERINUS³ COOK married his wife, Elizabeth (maiden name not known), about 1779 and resided at Stone Arabia until about 1791, when he removed to Sharon, Schoharie Co., N. Y., his four oldest children being born in Stone Arabia and all the others in Sharon. He removed with his family to Verona, Oneida Co., N. Y., prior to 1814, but after 1809, as on May 1st of that year he and Elizabeth, his wife, of Sharon, N. Y., sold ten acres of land to Elijah⁶ Parsons, of Sharon, and on Jan. 17, 1817, they convey 88 acres to Andrew Moyer (his son-in-law), in which deed he is described as of Verona. In both deeds the name is Severinus Koch, while he signs his name Cook. His wife died at Verona, but he returned to Sharon prior to 1833, when he applied for a pension and in the application stated that he resided at Sharon, where he died Oct. 21, 1841, at the home of his daughter, Elizabeth, wife of Andrew C. Moyer. German was the language of that part of Switzerland from which his grandfather came, and was in common use in that part of the Mohawk Valley until after the Revolution, but his children used both German and English.

The name "Severinus" is in the church records of birth at Stone Arabia, in his war records, and deeds executed by him, and on his tombstone in the Sharon Cemetery, but his descendants and other branches of the family have adopted the name "Sylvanus" instead.

POSTSCRIPT

The last proof sheet has been read, and the last page of the index has gone to the printer, and before the binders close the door I must claim the privilege of a parting word, a word of mingled pleasure and regret.

Pleasure that the labor of the past four years is ended.

Regret that I must now part with the intimate association with both the living and the dead that has attended the work.

For, to a very large extent, I have at times seemed to live in the past, have had in many instances a brief glance into the lives of many long dead, and in imagination have seen the ghostly procession, through the past years and centuries, pass before me. I have also had the pleasure of the acquaintance, by letter or in person, of many of the living who by their courtesy have added friendship to the ties of blood; and now to all living and dead, as the host of the occasion bids them farewell at the closing door, I cannot but express a sincere regret at the parting.
